Able Amazon Wins Rooty Hill Derby

HELTER SKELTER WINS ROYAL NAVY CUP TO PAY DAYS' BIGGEST DIVIDEND

D. S. Li Rides Three Winners

(BY "MORNING DEW")

The feature of yesterday's racing was the success of Mr. D. S. Li who won the two main races of the day, the Subscription Griffin's Challenge Cup and the Rooty Hill Derby with Tiny Star and Able Amazon respectively. The latter won the Australian event without very much difficulty.

The biggest dividend of the day was paid by Helter Skelter when he won the Royal Navy Cup in fine style, thanks to a nice bit of work by Mr. A. J. P. Heard, who also had a very successful day.

Another good bit of riding was seen when Mr. Frost steered home Gleneagles in front of Sadko and Hetman to win the Exchange Plate. The Dunbar candidate ran very well and reminded one of the days when he regularly came home a winner and was one of the most formidable middle distance candidate in local racing.

Cossack's Beauty made certain of the Gymkhana Stakes by a convincing defeat over King's Justice in a field of fifteen starters. Mr. Marshall rode the winner here and rode a very confident race.

Soldier of China redeemed himself somewhat yesterday by winning the American Club Cup from a field which included some of the season's best griffins.

EXCHANGE PLATE

Sadko started a favourite for the fourth race, but was just beaten at the finish by Gleneagles. Sadko ran at the head of the field in this race, and had to make his own pace. Hetman was a good third.

CORAL PLATE

The Goose, aided by a flying start had a long lead and created quite a thrill when he led into the straight. Woodland Stag was the only one to catch him up. Lucy Glitters finished third, accounting for Night Star, Polar Star and Fortia.

KALGAN PLATE

In Good Time set the pace in this mile race where there were sixteen starters. At the six furlongs he was joined by Young

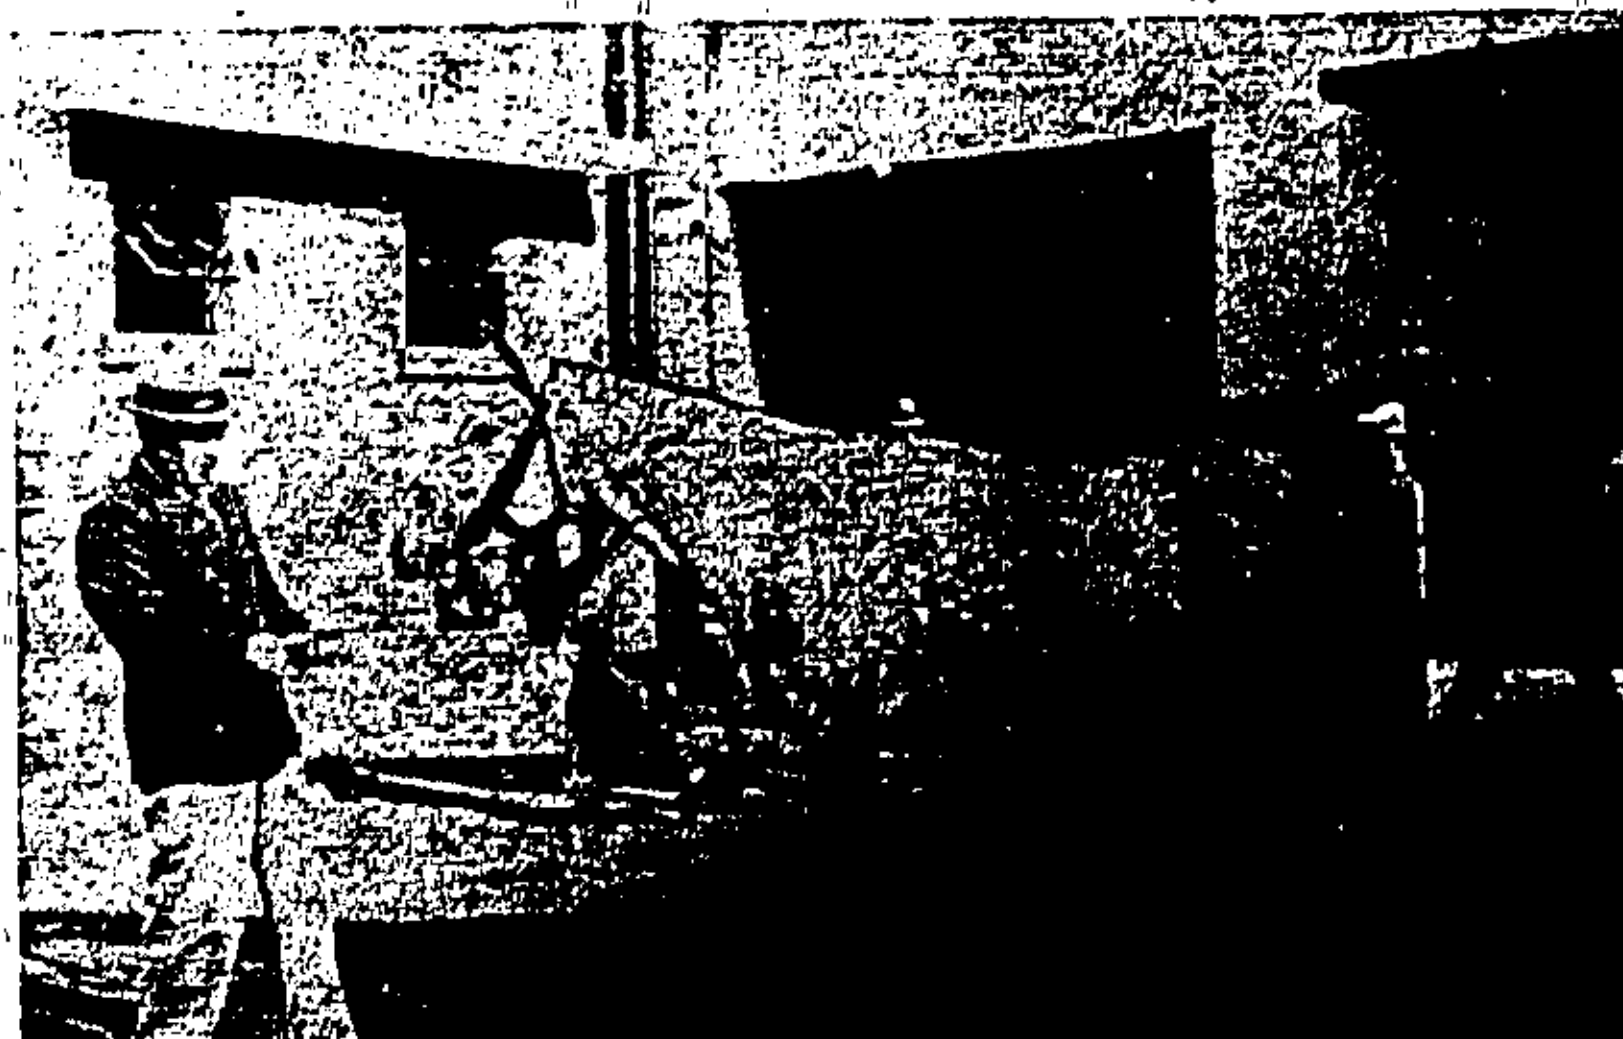

SUB GRIFIN'S CHALLENGE CUP

For the big race of the day, Tiny Star upset the favourites by leading home from the five furlongs post. Surprise and Cavalcade drew up at the distance post with the leader, but D. S. Li got the little more of Tiny Star that gave him ultimate victory.

AMERICAN CLUB CUP

Soldier of China won this race and to some extent compensated for his earlier defeats. Macaroni finished second and Prima Donna, who started a favourite, finished third. Prima Donna set the pace, but was passed by Soldier of China on entering the straight and at the distance post he was passed by Macaroni as well.

TO DISPUTE THE CHAMPIONS.

Trentbridge who is expected to give Liberty Bay a race in the Champions to-day.

Hero, who, however, had had enough at the Rock. King Willow and Chesterfield lay handily near all the way and passed the leader on entering the straight. King Willow ultimately won by a length and a half with In Good Time coming in third three further lengths away.

TIENTSIN STAKES

Gladiator a warm favourite for the second race, won comfortably, although King's Worthy put up a belated challenge in the last furlong. Oak Bay and Soldier of Germany were prominent in the earlier part of the race and finished third and fourth respectively.

ROYAL NAVY CUP

Helter Skelter won this race in convincing fashion thanks to a masterly bit of riding by Mr. Heard who, contrary to usual custom, kept him at the end of the field. The pony came through strongly in the straight to win easily Blaise finished second and Gay Butterfly third. The winner paid over $200 to each of his supporters. Burroughmaster was favourite, but was unplaced.

GOVERNOR'S CUP

Trentbridge, Brechin and Blue Star were the only starters in this race. The pace was made very slow, and only over the last half mile was any effort made to put up anything like a race. Trentbridge won from Brechin by a length with Blue Star four lengths away.

ROOTY HILL DERBY

Mr. D. S. Li riding Able Amazon made no mistake with the Rooty Hill Derby which he won comfortably from Racing Heart and Mutiny Bay. Bronze Era was the big disappointment here for he was expected to give the favourite a tough race. He led for the first mile and a bit, after which, he faded rapidly out of the picture.

PEKING PLATE

Sarabande and Young Chap started equal favourites for this race, and together with Bronze Idol monopolised affairs. Young Chap won from Bronze Idol and Sarabande was third.

RACING STAKES

Mr. D. S. Li rode a sound race on Brilliant Star to win this event

CHAMPION'S DAY Prospects Of Some Good Racing

Today is Champion's day, and so far as the big race is concerned, interest will mainly be centered on the question as to whether Trentbridge will be able to extend Liberty Bay. Personally I don't think he will, good though he is. The field in the Champions is likely to be very limited in view of the quality of the stalwarts who are appearing.

The Ladies' Purse should provide a good race, and I can see a keen tussle here between Gleneagles, Sadko and Cossack's Beauty. Brechin too, has a sporting chance. The Sports Club Cup and Hong Kong Stakes for Subscription griffins ought to be a good race. Classic Hall will have plenty of opposition here from Cavalcade, Tiny Star and Surprise.

One of the most interesting races on the programme is The Jockey Cup for novices, which is the last race on the card before the interval. Mayflower has a good chance of winning here.

SELECTIONS

- Race 1. In Good Time, Sarabande, Chow Fan
- Race 2. Electric Star, Chief Seattle, High Life
- Race 3. Gleneagles, Cossack's Beauty, Sadko
- Race 4. Polar Star, City of Brisbane, Lucy Glitters
- Race 5. Mayflower, Jungle Jim, Widnes
- Race 6. Racing Heart, Alacrity, Fanling Fox
- Race 7. Soldier of Britain, Gladiator, Bright View
- Race 8. Liberty Bay, Trentbridge, Don
- Race 9. Classic Hall, Young Chap, Cavalcade
- Race 10. Bay View, Sporting Life, Budge
- Race 11. Chesterfield, Red Fox, Brax Tub
- Race 12. Brechin, Navy Hall, Bright Star

from Rifle and Budge. Bay View and Sporting Life, the two favourites led the field but both were tired before the straight was reached, and were unplaced.

GYMKHANA STAKES

The last race of the day resolved itself into a tussle between Cossack's Beauty and King's Justice, which the former won justly, staying with the Dynasty candidate until the head of the straight, and drawing away to win by many lengths. Bright Star just ousted The Tiger for third place.

Race 1. Mr. Dynasty's King Willow, 155 lbs. (Mr. Y. S. Chang) 1. Mr. H. S. Y's Chesterfield, 155 lbs. (Mr. A. J. P. Heard) 2. Mr. Li Po Chun's In Good Time, 158 lbs. (Mr. F. M. L. Soares) 3. Won by 1; lengths; 3 lengths between second and third. Time: 2 min. 18.1 sec. Pari Mutuel:— Winner: $23.90. Place: $9.40; $6.80; $5.90. Also ran:—Bird of Paradise (Mr. Tang Man Wah); Black Prince (Mr. Charles); Bold Commander (Mr. H. M. Pih); Brass Idol (Mr. Pearce); City View (Mr. S. Y. Laing); Delightful Chance (Mr. Proulx); Income Tax (Mr. T. L. Wong); Ironsides (Mr. Deitz); Lucky III, Singing Butterfly (Mr. Botelho); Soldier of Italy (Mr. Y. Sun); Tolshan (Mr. H. P. Ineson); Young Hero (Mr. I. Kui Ying).

Scottish Air-Mail Letter

Lord Haig's Diary Of The War: Scots And
The Codex: Scottish Authoress: Glasgow
And The Air Map: Memorial To Sir
John Reid

(Special Air Mail Service.)

THEY MEANT TO GO TO

SCOTLAND—BUT

Edinburgh, February 7
The eight Welsh miners who had saved for a year so that they could make a "grand tour" to Edinburgh for the Rugby match between Scotland and Wales, set out in high fettle in an airplane.
They were appropriately and cheerfully dressed in their national colours, and several hundred fellow-workmen at Tylorstown, South Wales, gave them a great send off.

They were to be welcomed at Edinburgh by several thousands of their fellow-countrymen with songs written for the occasion.
And practically the whole of the Rhonda Valley had planned to receive them on their return.

But as they travelled north the fog, the one thing they had not counted on, became thicker and thicker, and finally forced them down at Stafford.

A council of war was held and the plane turned back—not to South Wales, but to Bristol. There they were entertained for an hour at the aerodrome.

Determined to see something for their money, they decided to go to Portsmouth to see the Portsmouth v. Sheffield United match.

Not even the fog could stop them reaching there.

LORD HAIG'S DIARY OF

THE WAR

A special service, organized by the British Legion, was held yesterday afternoon at St. Columba's (Church of Scotland), Pont Street, in memory of the sixth anniversary of the death of Field-Marshal Lord Haig.

The service was attended by representatives of 60 London branches, whose standards were carried in procession into the church under Captain W. Birrell.

In the course of an address, the Rev. Archibald Fleming said it would be 13 years on June 19 since he had had the privilege of ordaining the late Field-Marshal an Elder of the Church of Scotland. During the Great War Earl Haig had attended service there whenever he could escape the tremendous responsibility of his command in France.

"During a visit to Bemersyde," he continued, "not long before his death, Lord Haig's talk and concern was partly with the War, a story not yet fully told, for he would not then make public what one day when published, will add further to the known stature of his magnanimity. But it was chiefly of you of his Legion he was thinking and speaking, you who, he was determined, were not to be let down so far as he could prevent it, you for whom he gladly shortened and gave his life."

Dr. Fleming added: "His private diary, which it was my privilege hasily to peruse will one day alter some apparently established values."

Earl Haig's monument surrounded them. It was the British Legion in all its multitudinous branches and ingenious beneficent activities.
At the conclusion of the service
Last Post and Reveille were sounded by the drummers of the Scots Guards. Poppy wreaths were laid at the memorial to Lord Haig in the church by Major-General Sir Frederick Maurice, for the British Legion, Patrol Leader
Smith, for the Earl Haig's Own Troop of Boy Scouts, General A.
F. Hulme for the British Empire Service League, and Major L. D.
Bennett, from all ranks of the London Scottish.

Among other present were:—
General Sir Ian and Lady Hamilton, Lady Maurice, Admiral Sir Henry Bruce, Colonel G. R. Cros-field, Colonel E. C. Heath, Major Copland-Griffiths, and Captain W.
G. Wilcox.

SCOTS AND THE CODEX
The Archbishop of Canterbury revealed to a small company this afternoon that two Scotsmen were largely responsible for the recent acquisition of the Codex Sinaiticus by the British Museum. There was a reminiscent enthusiasm in Dr.
Lang's virile voice when he told us how he learned that the Soviet Government were willing to sell the unique manuscript and, upon approaching the Prime Minister found him equally eager to secure it for the nation. That early co-operation of Primat and Premier made the subsequent negotiations dompantly easy and as a result the British Museum is now firmly established as the greatest centre of Biblical study in the world.

Some £30,000 are still required to conclude the purchase, and Scotland should certainly contribute substantial support to the initial efforts of our two great countrymen.

SCOTTISH AUTHORESSES

Successful feminine playwrights are so few that all recruits to the select ranks can be called geniuses.

Tonight Gordon Daviot's clever historical drama, "Richard of Bordeaux," celebrated its first birthday at the New Theatre, and it was estimated that the box office has reaped financial harvest of £100, 000. In spite of this triumph, the Scottish writer—an ex-school teacher—effaces herself to such an extent that Londoners scarcely know her. She seldom visits London, preferring a cottage in Inverness to some place nearer the scene of her triumph. It is probable that Glasgow and Edinburgh will see "Richard of Bordeaux," later in the year. The dramatist's latest work,
"Mary Stuart" will be another historical vignette for the near future.

GLASGOW AND THE AIR MAP
The middle of next month will see Glasgow definitely on the air map of Europe. On March 14 a daily service between Renfrew and London will be inaugurated by Midland and Scottish Air Ferries, Ltd., whose pioneering work on the Belfast and Islay routes has done so much to awaken the West of Scotland to the possibilities of flight. The company also prepare to extend their activities to the Outer Hebrides, so that Stornoway, before very long, will find itself in easy contact with the continent of Europe. It is understood that the Glasgow-London return fare will be ten guineas or thereabouts, a cost that should not dissuade genuine travellers from sampling a service that has so much to offer to modern clients.

HIS SCOTTISH WIFE
Sir Thomas Inskip paid a warm tribute to Scotland and the Scots when he spoke at the annual dinner of the Association of Scottish Chartered Accountants in London recently.

"I have a sincere respect and admiration for everything Scottish," he said. "I spend most of my non-working hours in your country."

"I was taken captive by one of your fellow-countrywomen many years ago, and as a mark of my servitude, I have to go where she wants to go for holidays. That happens to be in Scotland."

(Laughter.)
Sir Thomas married Lady Augusta Orr-Ewing, widow of Mr.
Charles Orr-Ewing, M. P. for Ayr Burghs, and eldest daughter of the seventh Earl of Glasgow.

MEMORIAL TO SIR JOHN REID
The committee of the Princess Louise Scottish Hospital for Limbless Sailors and Soldiers, Erskine, have had under consideration a proposal to provide at the hospital a memorial to Sir John Reid in recognition of his services and great generosity to the institution.

On hearing of his proposal Sir
John's brother, Mr. Andrew T.
Reid, of Auchtermuchty, indicated that he would like to erect in the hospital a permanent memorial on behalf of the family. This generous offer has been accepted by the committee, and the memorial will take the form of a bust of Sir John Reid to be placed in a permanent niche in the central entrance hall.
The bust is being executed by Mr.
Benno Schott, A.R.S.A., Glasgow.

R. D. BELL WINS
S. G. C. SINGLES

A. V. Sennitt Defeated at Seekingjao by 6 & 4

Shanghai, February 22.
Seekingjao was the scene of a very fine golf match last Sunday, when R. D. Bell defeated A. V. Sennitt in the final of the singles competition. The weather conditions were excellent, except for a strong northerly wind, which added excitement to the play.

Bell, who was giving Sennitt seven strokes, started badly by losing the first two holes, but he recovered quickly, and at the turn was two up on his opponent. Sennitt won the thirteenth hole a birdie five and also had a birdie three in the eighteenth. He could not overcome Bell's lead, however, and the latter finished the morning round with a score of 82, one up.

In the afternoon, Sennitt out-drove Bell continually but was let down frequently with his approach shots. This gave Bell his opportunity and his first nine, twelfth, and thirteenth holes were halved, with Sennitt putting up a game performance. Bell won the eleventh and fourteenth, however, to put him six up and four to play. His score in the afternoon was 84.

This was the end of a very successful competition, which started with 74 entries.

NEW PLANES FOR R.A.F.

Adapted For Every Duty

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, February 9.
A number of new general purpose aeroplanes has been ordered for the R.A.F., and provision will probably be made in the Estimates for the re-equipment of more than one squadron with this type. The new machine is to be known as the Hardy. It has been produced by the Hawker Company, and is similar in design and performance to the Hart day bomber, with which several squadrons are equipped.

The Hardy has been specially prepared for service in the Middle East, and while it retains a top speed of about 180 miles an hour, it is equipped with extra fuel tanks to increase its range, with water tanks for desert patrol work, with wireless and with photographic apparatus. For its own defence it has two machine-guns, one firing forward and the other set on a Scarff ring over the rear cockpit.

Every duty which may be required of an aeroplane in the R.A.F. can be performed by this type with very little preparation. It may be recalled that a similar machine has been turned into a two-seater fighter. The whole range of Hawker machines in this class is fitted with the Rolls-Royce Kestrel (500 h.p.) engine.

CAR TRANSMISSIONS
EXPLAINEDPre-Selective Or Self-Changing Gearbox

Fitted nowadays to a large number and variety of motor vehicles—cars, buses, coaches, tractors, railcars and even motor cycles—the Wilson pre-selective or self-changing gearbox embodies an old principle in a new form.
It is an epicyclic or planetary transmission, resembling in principle the two-speed gear of the super-speed Model T. Ford and the three-speed transmission of the long range Lanchester models that extended from the early days of motoring until two or three years ago. The Wilson gearbox was adopted for this make in conjunction with the Daimler fluid flywheel.

Where the Wilson transmission differs fundamentally from these early epicyclic gears is in the provision for bringing the various ratios, or "speeds," into operation.
Each and every one can be pre-selected, both from neutral and while another is in use, though no gear-change occurs until a pedal —the gear-changing pedal—is depressed and released. If the pre-selected gear is not required after all, the pre-selector lever (a finger control located under or over the steering wheel as a rule) can be replaced in its original position, or moved to any other in readiness for changing later into a higher or a lower gear than the one actually in use.

How the Gears Operate

Top gear is a direct drive as usual, implying that one of the gears is used, the drive being conveyed to a small cone clutch and thence straight through the gearbox to the propeller shaft.
Each of the other speeds, including reverse, is gained by means of its own series of gear-wheels, which are always in mesh.

One of these gear-wheels in each series is known as the annulus, or ring gear; it consists of a steel ring with a smooth exterior, but with internally projecting teeth.
These teeth encircle and engage with those of three uniformly spaced gear pinions, which in turn encircle and engage with a central pinion. The three are known as the planet gears (hence the term "planetary") and the central one as the sun gear.

To bring any indirect speed into use, a brake band is made to grip and hold stationary the annulus of the required speed. Changing gear is effected by releasing the brake around the annulus of the gear in use and then applying the brake of the gear that is required.
When top gear is needed to follow the use of an indirect gear the brake of the latter is released and the cone clutch allowed to engage.

What Takes Place

When the pre-selector lever is moved mechanism is set in readiness that will operate automatically if and when the gear-changing pedal be depressed and released.

Depressing the pedal
"disengages" the gear in use; releasing the pedal brings the pre-selected one into operation. The pedal can be used as a clutch pedal for starting the car in a low gear or for stopping; it must, in fact, be so used unless a fluid flywheel is an accompaniment, or unless a separate clutch (automatic or otherwise) is fitted, as in two cars having this transmission.

TRAM-CAR TRIES TO INVADE BANK

Bund Traffic Held Up By Strange Accident During Afternoon

A collision between a motor bus and a tram on the Bund, Shanghai, shortly after 3 o'clock on Feb. 21, held up traffic for nearly half an hour. The New Bund Road allowed traffic to proceed, however, while mechanics from the tram company endeavored to remove the vehicle, which almost had crashed into the Central Bank of China building at the corner of the Bund and Hankow Road.

In spite of the heavy traffic on the Bund, no persons were injured, although the tram careened at a right angle to its course.
The collision was of a minor nature, but in effect broke the connecting link—a two-inch square iron—completely of. The matter was speedily taken care of by two service lorries of the tram company. The first was on the job within five minutes, and although coupled to the derelict vehicle, went astray when the connecting cable broke. A second, and more powerful vehicle was employed, and eventually removed the tram.

How Long
To Go?TIME ELEMENT IN AUTOMATIC SIGNALS.

Most motorists are grateful for the advent of the traffic signal light, but are also inclined to think that the system is open to further improvement. Unless the signal lamps have been in uninterrupted view for a considerable distance it is impossible to tell on close approach, whether green or red has just begun or is about to expire. This factor of uncertainty is at times awkward, and, also, it leads to the impetuous sort of driver taking chances. In a recent issue a note was published about a new traffic signal which was designed to give a clear indication of the time lapse between the changes. Now another device has made its appearance, and is a promising character. It is called the Phillips road traffic signal light, and is arranged so that the face of each light shows three vertical columns with an horizontal column across the top.
Reading from left to right, in the diagrams beneath the sketch, green has just started. Then after the first small interval the foot of the centre column colours up; another interval, and a fresh section of the centre column is coloured. The observer sees at a glance how much time remains at any instant. On the last beat but one the horizontal column turns orange, and after the last beat the left side and top change to red. Red is timed in the same way. This description, of course, is merely an indication of the principle, of which several variations are possible.

The device is controlled by a series of chromium-plated shutters which act also as reflectors, and the shutters are operated by a camshaft actuated by a solenoid in line with a spring-controlled air or oil cylinder. The solenoids are in circuit with the main signal lamps, so that when the main signal comes on the shutters open instantaneously and close in sequence, being timed by the lead valves of the air or oil cylinders.
The inventor is Mr. A. E. Phillips, 333A, Bearwood Road, Birmingham.

News from Hollywood

Freddie March's first starring vehicle for 20th Century Pictures will be entitled "The Firebrand," instead of "The Affairs of Cellini," thus reverting back to the title of his successful stage comedy by Edwin Justus Mayer on which the picture is based. March is now enroute to New York by way of Panama, with his wife, Florence Eldridge, and after a short vacation will return to Hollywood to begin work.

"Hold That Girl!" is the new title of "Every Girl For Herself," the Fox production featuring James Dunn and Clair Trevor. Hamilton MacFadden directed. Edwin Maxwell and Sidney Bracy have been allotted roles in "The Ninth Guest," Columbia feature in which Donald Cook and Genevieve Tobin will have the leading parts.

Tay Garnett and Ernst Lubitsch have exchange offices. Garnett is occupying Lubitsch's former offices at Paramount, while Lubitsch is using the offices formerly assigned to Garnett at M-G-M. Lubitsch plans to have his picture completed in time for Garnett to follow him into the M-G-M suite.

Chick Chandler's holiday guests held a target practice with his new air gun and "denuded" his Christmas trees with BB shot. Joe May, Veness, who is Columbia's newest director, built Germany's "Hollywood," the first filmcity on the continent. He is credited with the discovery of Jan Kiepura and has directed Emil Jannings, Conrad Veidt, Lya De Putti and others. His latest picture, "The Wedding of the Private Secretary," was made in France.

Jean Frontal is no more! Ben Holmes, who directed her in a dozen pictures at RKO, has changed her name to Jean Fontaine. The director declares it has nothing to do with numerology or occult sciences, but that the new label is the deduction of common sense. She is Mrs. Chic Chandler in private life.

Ginger Rogers, one of Hollywood's busiest players, is currently at work in two pictures at the Warner-First National studios. These are "Hot Air," with Dick Powell and Pat O'Brien also in the cast and "Upper World," with Warren William and Mary Astor. "Hot Air," the new musical picture with Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Ginger Rogers, Allen Jenkins and others, started production yesterday at the Warner studios under the direction of Ray Enright, with Busby Berkeley in charge of the musical numbers. Another member of the cast is Joan Wheeler.

Edward Everett Horton has been chosen by First National as

DISNEY'S "AMBASSADOR"

Despite his unassuming personality, Walt Disney is getting to be a big fellow in the cinema world.

The highbrows long ago elevated him to the position of the screen's supreme creative artist. Now the lowbrows, the calculating, matter-of-fact, worldly people who think in terms of vulgar money, are beginning to bend the knee before Disney.

From being a slightly mad but in spired artist playing with a madder Mickey Mouse he has become a figure in the financial side of the film business—a paying proposition worthy of commercial consideration.

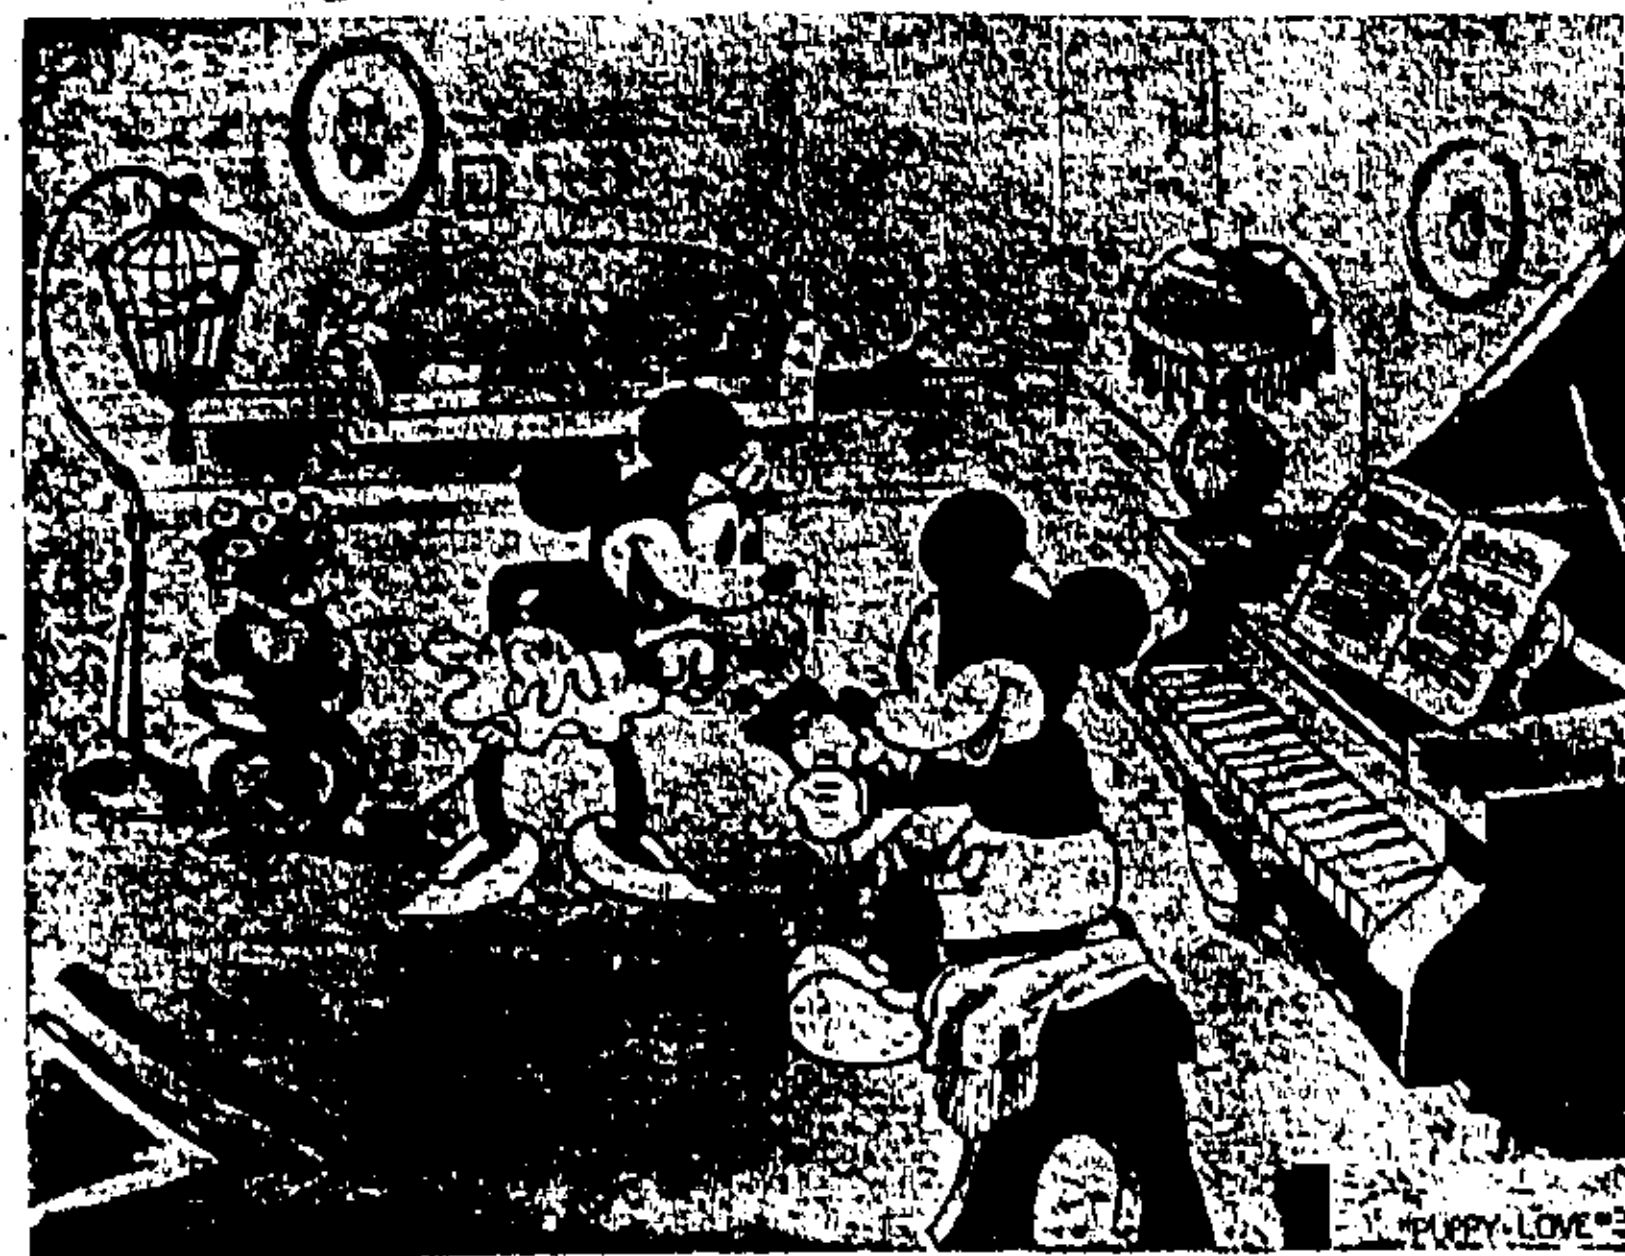

His ramifications are steadily growing. His producing organization gets bigger and bigger.

I knew that he maintained a considerable staff of cartoonists, each and every one of whom played a part, however small, in the making of a Mickey Mouse subject or a Silly Symphony. But I did not know until I was invited to meet him the other day that there was such a person as "Mr. Walt Disney's personal representative and business manager."

The gentleman in question is Kay Kamen, who is at present visiting this country in the role of Disney's "A Ambassador to Britain." When he leaves, he will hand over the job again to his brother, who normally looks after the Disney interests in Europe.

Kay Kamen is a good talker, with a "salesman-like" American manner. He told the Press many interesting things about the Disney organization, and dropped a hint that the Mickey Mouse cartoons may soon be presented in colour, like the new Silly Symphonies.

Later I protested at this, holding that Mickey is essentially a black-and-white creation. But Mr. Kamen insisted that I would change my mind when I saw one of "M. Mouse's" cartoons in full colour.

Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse.

"After Disney was honoured by the American Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences," he said, "He had a copy of Mickey's Gala Premiere coloured and shown to the members of the Academy as a gesture thanks and goodwill. You would not believe the difference colour made to that cartoon unless you saw it for yourself. Try to imagine the effect of colour on the screen in which Mickey and Minnie, dressed up to the eyebrows, emerge from their motor car and march proudly into Grauman's Chinese Theatre. I can tell you it looked great. The caricatures of the stars, too, were enormously improved by colour."

Mr. Kamen pointed out that Disney is the only cartoon producer regularly using Technicolor, the three-colour process, which is the most expensive of the lot and is considered the most effective.

He gave an amusing account of a "story conference" at the Disney studios. Apparently these conferences are very informal affairs. "The boys" just sit around, smoking, while Disney outlines his idea for a cartoon. Then they all make their own suggestions, which are accepted or rejected by common vote. Thus the complete scenario of a cartoon is the work, not of one, but of many minds. The music and sound effects are added afterwards, with Disney himself supplying the voice of Mickey Mouse.

The newspaper denials of Disney's alleged "enormous profits" on his cartoons were supported by Mr. Kamen. Although the receipts on a Disney cartoon are far greater than those taken by any other make, the costs of production are naturally high. Disney's own salary has never exceeded $40 a week, which, for a man in his position, is a very small stipend.

One thing Mr. Kamen did not mention—at least, not in my hearing—was the little-known fact that the present development of the cartoons, and especially of the Silly Symphonies, would have been impossible without the financial "backing" of Joseph M. Schenck. It was Schenck who put up the money which enabled Disney to develop his ideas on an ambitious scale. To Schenck, therefore, should go at least a share of the credit for the success Disney has now achieved.

SONG OF SONGS

The "Song of Songs" coming to the King's Theatre on Sunday is Rouben Mamoulian's Screen Production of Hermann Sudermann's Immortal Novel and Edward Sheldon's play. It concerns a beautiful girl who through the death of her father, is forced to live with a mean slovenly aunt. She falls madly in love with a young sculptor. Betrayed by him she marries his patron, a cruel wealthy Baron.

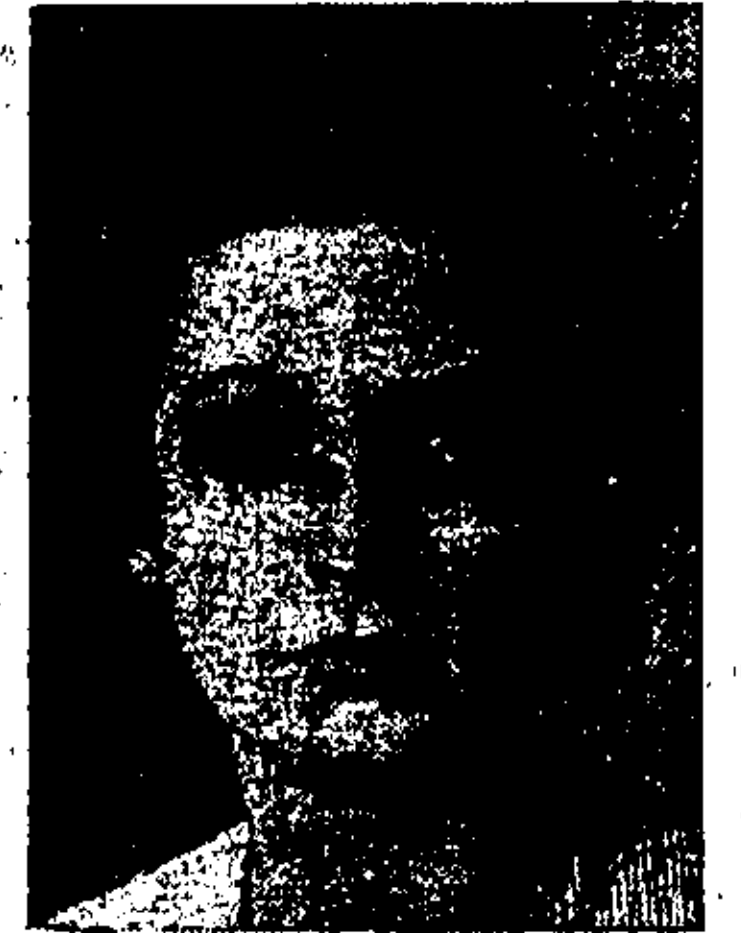

Forced to divorce him, she becomes a notorious night-life figure in Berlin. It is here that the sculptor lover finds her and the manner in which they re-estabish their supreme happiness furnishes a splendid climax.

In addition to "Brain Aberration" the star is supported by a distinguished cast including Lionel Atwill, Alison Skipworth, Hardu Albright and Helen Iree-man.

TOO MUCH HARMONY

Too Much Harmony coming to the King's Theatre is a Paramount film musical. It features, Bing Crosby, Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Kitty Kelly, Lilyan Tashman and Judith Allen.

The story of a love tangle that all but ruins Broadway show, Bing Crosby the star falls in love with Judith Allen who comes to Broadway from a vaudeville act, and his fiancée Lilyan Tashman goes haywire when she sees him leaving her.

Doris, a charming member of "Hello Hong Kong"

Mr. Laughton's Caricature Role

Oscar Wilde's play is mis-called. "The Importance of Being Earnest," revised last night at the Old Vic, is not half so great as the importance of being so-called without blemish.

A founding in a black handbag left in the cloak-room at Victoria Station by an absent-minded governess, who thought merely to have parked there the manuscript of her three-volume novel (we are again approaching those prodigious times) represented to Wilde a most comically distressing social problem.

That it seems equally so to a hardy audience acquainted with problems more strenuous, must be taken as a tribute to the superb acting of the nine members of the cast.

Earnest (or John), the uncertainly named young man of still more uncertain origin, is well portrayed by Mr. Roger Livesey, whose cautious shuffling speech, so disconcerting in some Shakespearean roles, apply express this diffident lover. His fiancée, the That it seems equally so to a hardy audience acquainted with problems more strenuous, must be taken as a tribute to the superb acting of the nine members of the cast.

Mr. George Curzon plays Algernon Moncreiff, the cynical young man about town. The demure Cecily Cardew, who entrances him in the verdant Victorian bower of her guardian's garden, is Miss Drusla Jeans.

Mr. Charles Laughton amiably submits to a caricature-role, that of the ridiculous Canon Chasuble, unworthy of his great talent, but extracting, nevertheless, the last ounce of humour from it.

But the exquisite essence of Wilde's wit is left to Miss Athene Seyler to distill in the ghrewed, cynical and ultra-sophisticated character of Lady Bracknell. Hers and the delicious comedy of Miss Elsa Lanchester, grotesquely but eloquently disguised as the amirking literary governess, Miss Prism, are the outstanding performances of a lively production.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Wallage Beery: Six feet. Weight 180. A swell old-timer with a colorful past. Has been railroad section, circus elephant trainer, and Gloria Swanson's first husband, not to mention female impersonator, stage electrician, and chorus man. Versatility! Just as natural and likeable off-screen. Happily married—no truth in those Marie Dressler romance rumors! Flying is his hobby. Address: Beverly Hills.

"George Brent: Six feet one. Weighs 170. Big enough to keep anyone from calling him "Mr. Chatterton." The country gentleman type. Has the carriage of an army man, but has been on the stage since knee high, and plans to retire soon (as does his wife). Otherwise doctors, warm him of blindness. Ralph Forbes, Ruth's ex-husband, ate his Thanksgiving turkey with the Brents. Still "civilized"! Address: Warner Brothers.

Heather Angel: Believe it or not, that's her real name! The frank and humorous English lass is unmarried, but has figured in no Hollywood romances. Personality hints: she smokes cigarettes, adores shooting galleries at the beach, has travelled all over, cooks poulet en cocotte, printiniere in an ancient family casserole, and collects whips. Oh, yes! She loves lollypops. She's now in "Seven Lives Were Changed." Address: Fox Hills.

Paul Kelly: Five feet nine and one-half inches. Weight 160. Hollywood applauds the courage of this boy who came through tragedy a better actor than ever. Refused to change his name, hasn't taken a drink in five years, and wants to be judged on present merits. Looks self-contained and tight-lipped—that gangster type. The boy has a future, but he's no newcomer. Address: 20th Century Studios.

Gloria Stuart: Natural blondes are rare in Hollywood, but Gloria has other distinctions. Her trail separation from husband Gordon Newell is our least novelty. They're still sweethearts. Adores luxury and has an infectious smile; is clever and saves her money; looks like a typical America girl, modern style. That's rare in Hollywood, too! Step up, fellows—husband, or no husband she likes other beaux. Address: Whiteley Heights.

Eddie Cantor: Five feet eight. Weighs 135. In private life the banjo-eyed comic is a serious chap, good business man and president of the new Screen C.I.R. He been married twenty years to the same wife, almost a record. The father of five daughters—that is a record! Lost one fortune in the stock market crash, then made it back kidding the crash. A little guy, he gives large sums to charity. Address: New York City.

William Cagney: Five feet eight and one-half inch. Weighs 180. Maybe this youngster can beat the jinx that keeps stars' relatives from clicking. Bill looks like brother Jimmy's biggest rival, and packs the same wallop. Is new to town, but eloped with one of our prettiest girls just the same. We mean Boots Mallory. Pure Irish, he might be Jimmy's twin except that his hair is blonde. Address: RKO Studios.

May Robson: Muzzy May is the nickname of this veteran, newly raised to stardom. As a girl, you see, she mothered all the neighborhood kids. Now looks back on a long career with satisfaction, and lives quietly with a friend and secretary of twenty-five years' standing. Spoke better than anyone at Marie Dressler's party. "Like many fine things, she grows better with age." That goes for May also! Address: Beverly Hills.

Opening At The Central To-Day

A situation in which a spoilt musical comedy star finds herself falling in love with the man who has openly insulted her and whom she engages as a private secretary in order to humiliate him, is bound to have an appeal for all who appreciate the subtleties and piquancy of such a situation. Filmgoers, therefore, should visit the Central Theatre today and see "The Song You Gave Me" in which Bebe Daniels and Victor Varconi, as Miti and Karl, find themselves in such a situation.

With the realization that she loves her secretary comes Karl's request that he might be allowed to absent himself between the hours of nine and eleven every evening and in an access of jealous rage she decides to investigate his whereabouts between those hours with comical results. Meanwhile, Karl, who is desperately in love with Miti has been warned in no uncertain terms that the beautiful star is not for him, and owing to the difference in

Final Showings At The King's

Those who have not yet seen "The Power and the Glory" are well advised not to miss the final opportunity at the King's Theatre today for it is a picture which will stir your admiration and praise.

The death of Tom Garner (Spencer Tracy), railroad magnate recalled to Henry (Frank Morgan), his lifelong friend in the manner in which Garner reached the heights of success from a humble start as truck walker. At this stage the picture scenes are reverted to the time when Tom started his successful career, and from then on the audience is treated to a drama of an unusual first class calibre. It is a bitter story, a tragic tale told without compromise and with none of the usual amenities which have ruined similar screen plots. In fact it is beautiful in its tragedy.

As Tom Garner, Spencer Tracy

"LOVE LIES"

Stanley Lupino Scores Again

Through highly humorous and unexpected contraptions in "Love Lies," showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Stanley Lupino, as Jerry, the unfortunate, is forced into giving one long string of impersonations, both varied and hilarious.

He impersonates Matadors—he impersonates Picadors—not to mention Toradors, but when he has finally escaped from the bull-ring, another impersonation awaited him.

His pal, "Rolly" Rider, on his wedding day, is paid an unexpected visit by his uncle, who has threatened to disinherit him if he marries, and "Rolly" to avert disaster, persuades his uncle that the beautiful Joyce is Jerry's wife. Most men, called upon to impersonate the husband of so charming a wife as Dorothy Boyd, who plays the part of Joyce, would not find it difficult to say the least, but Jerry is a confirmed misogynist and this newly married state embarrasses him ever more than did the attentions of the bull and in his own words he "feels like an aspirin waiting for a headache!"

Finally, to extricate himself from the hopeless muddle, Jerry impersonates a fair charmer from gay Paris, and Jerry, toying with a glass of champagne and patting his "unruly curls into position," is a joy to behold.

their financial stations he deliberately repulses her advances. Miti, infuriated, decides to accept the hand of a faithful but fatuous youth.

A delightful romance bristling with all the devices that go to make worthwhile entertainment, "The Song You Gave Me" was directed by Paul Stein, and Noel Gay has written two numbers, "The Song You Gave Me" and "Who'll Buy Me" which provides haunting musical background.

Sally Eilers with Norman Foster cast in the leading masculine role opposite her is said to give them an opportunity to display once more their roles as lovers so admirably acted by them in the "State Fair." They are two of the most attractive young people on the screen to-day. Ralph Morgan superb in the role of the acquisitive uncle.

It deals with the problem of a young and beautiful girl, who must choose between love and the comforts of wealth. Exquisite gowns are worn in this picture.

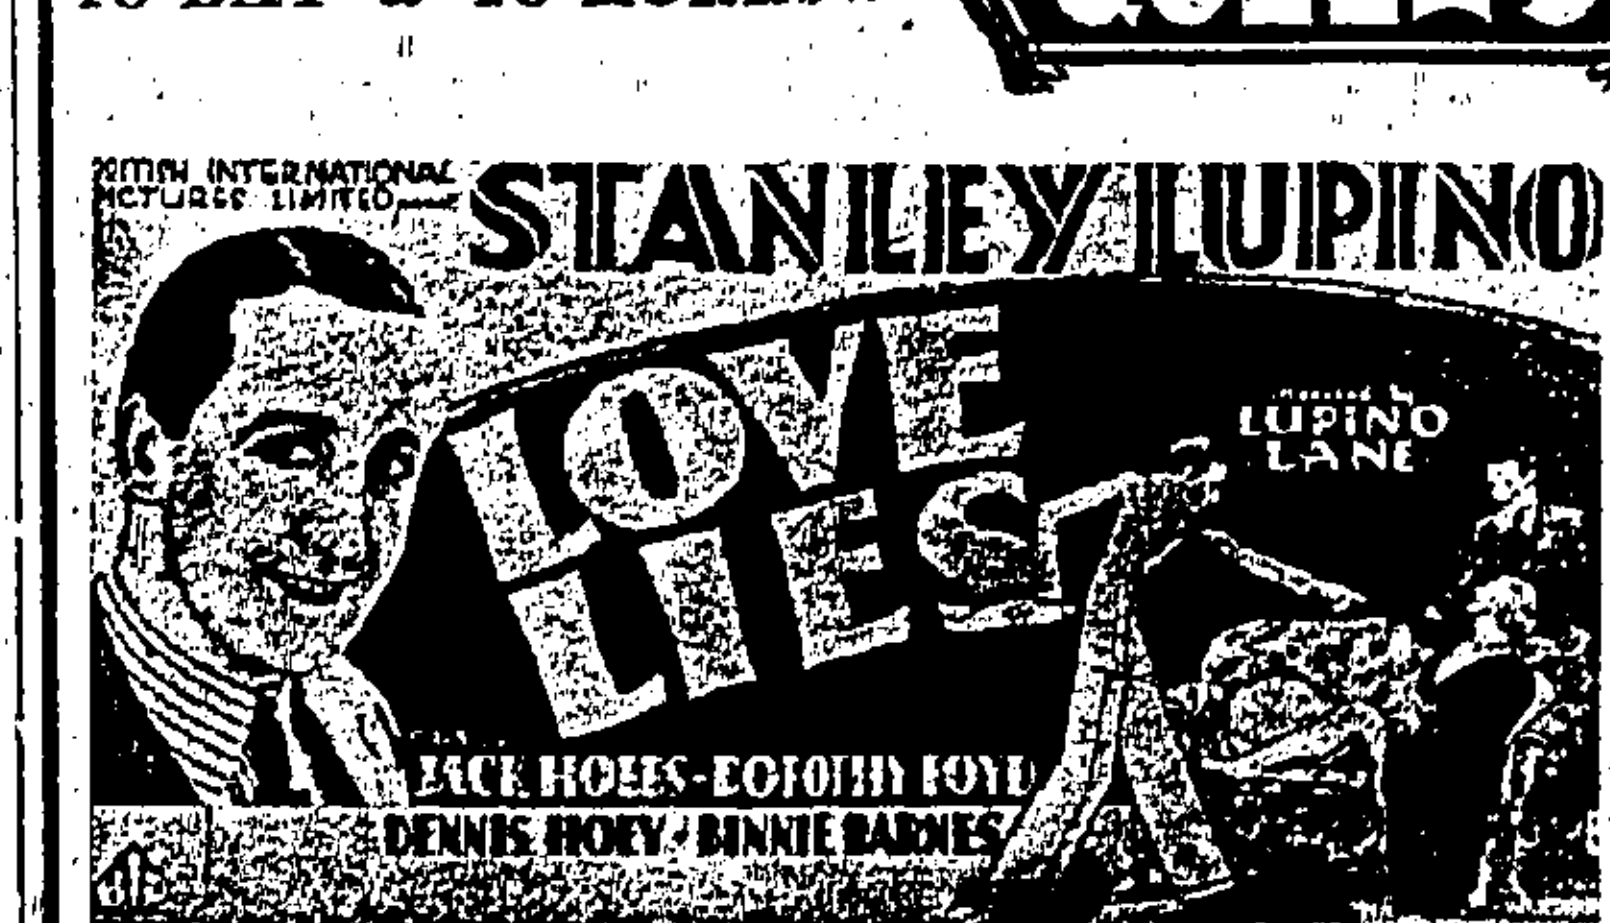

Others in the cast are Rosita Moreno Spanish Actress and dancer, Fredie Santley Marjorie Cason and Mary Mason.

can well be said to have given his best portrayal so far, and was ably supported by Colleen Moore, the favourite of the "silent" days as his wife, Frank Morgan as his friend Henry and Helen Vinson as the other woman.

This photograph of Sally Eilers, standing between Norman Foster and Ralph Morgan, just about summarizes the problem that is hers in "Walls of Gold," the Fox Film version of the best-selling novel by Kathleen Norris.

"HER BODY GUARD"

Edmund Lowe At Alhambra

When handsome and debonair Edmund Lowe is cast as a rough-and-ready detective to whom has been assigned the delicate task of playing guardian angel and private nursemaid to a frivolous and beautiful Broadway actress, something is bound to happen.

And it does, fast and furiously, in B.P. Schulberg's Paramount picture, "Her Bodyguard," which opens to-day at the Alhambra.

Moving quickly and dramatically in and out of a theatrical atmosphere, the film has everything that one could possibly demand. Excitement! Watch Lowe as he protects his pulchritudinous charge from the advances of persistent stage-door Johnnies. Humour! You'll probably pop a tussle laughing at the hilarious antics of Johnny Hines as the tipsy ballyhoo artist, Marjorie White as the dumb chorine, and Fuzzy Knight as the goofy song-writer.

Music! Just listen to seductive Wynne Gibson give a red-hot interpretation of "Where Have I Heard That Melody?" Glamour! You'll meet all those interesting personalties who create the excitement behind the brilliant Broadway footlights. Romance! Cast an eye towards Wynne Gibson as the thumb-down advances of "Millionaire" Edward Arnold and Producer Alan Dinahart, and opens her heart to her gay bodyguard.

The plot is a treat in itself, relating, as it does, the intrigues that go on backstage while Lowe keeps an impish eye on his charge, Miss Gibson. He does his job so well, that finally Wynne is safe from everyone except her bodyguard. She escapes him one night to go out with her producer, Dinahart, and while on her date, she is robbed of her jewelry. Lowe, thinking he has been framed, regains the jewelry, returns it to Wynne and sarcastically informs her that she is a "two-timing gold-digger."

Wynne, violently in love with him, then proceeds to prove she is not unlike the Northwest Mounties by going out and getting her man. The climax is novel, new and agreeably surprising.

You'll like "Her Bodyguard." You'll like the cast—the sharp and clever dialogue, the smooth direction of William Beaudine.

A VACANT SMILE

Arouses Magistrate's Suspicion

When charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with loitering, a Chinese named Wah Koo Cheung smiled vacantly in the dock, as a result of which he was remanded in prison for medical observation.

The defendant was alleged to have been found loitering outside the stairs of No. 199, Prince Edward Road, the residence of Mr. Wallace Harper.

It was stated that defendant was found by Mr. Harper outside his door shortly after midnight on Saturday, and handed over to the police. Defendant had been seen in the vicinity four times in two days, and had once before rung the bell to Mr. Harper's flat.

"I have two kids in my house, your Worship, and I don't want characters of this type to hang around," said Mr. Harper.

Defendant gave a rambling account of why he was there, and ended up by saying that he was invited to go there.

His Worship:—He's crazy. Court Interpreter:—I think so, sir. He doesn't know what he is talking about.

His Worship:—I'll remand him for seven days in prison for medical observation.

WINE IN CAKES

Chinese Woman Fined

For evading duty of $13.25 on five gallons of Chinese wine, a Chinese woman named Chan Siu was fined $130 with the alternative of six weeks' imprisonment by Mr. Balfour at Central Magistracy yesterday.

It was stated the woman had a fairly bad record. The last time she forfeited bail of $100 for a similar offence. She was one of the women who went aboard steamers arriving from Tientsin and the North, selling cakes. She put bottles of the ng ka pi wine under the cakes that were left over, and left the ship.

BIRCH FOR ROBBER

Seguel To Outrage In Shatin

Sentence of four months' hard labour and 12 strokes of the birch was imposed by Mr. Wynne Jones at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on a Chinese named Lam Hing who was charged with robbery on February at a place just below the Chee Wan Shan Temple, Shatin Gap.

According to Inspector Doring, the complainant, Wong Chan, and her mother, Chan Sze of 427, Chatham Road, Hungnam were walking down the road from the temple on the day in question when they were met by the defendant and a man not in custody.

The men stopped the two women and robbed them of a pair of gold and jade bracelets, $1.35 in cash and a metal wrist watch. The elder woman shouted "Save Life," and one of the assistants in the temple rushed out and, after a short chase, arrested the defendant. The other man got away and nothing was discovered.

After the two women had given evidence, His Worship passed sentence as stated.

DOG SUMMONSES

Three Europeans Fined

Three Europeans were summoned before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday in regard to dog offences.

Mr. J. J. Cameron was fined $8 for allowing his dog out in Cornhill Street, Kowloon Tong, without a muzzle on February 9.

Mr. C. B. Easterbrook was summoned on two charges of allowing his dog out in Prince Edward Road without a muzzle and failing to take out a licence. Defendant pleaded guilty to both charges and stated that he had forgotten to get the licence. He added that he had got it now. A fine of $8 was imposed on the first charge and a caution administered on the second.

When the name of Mr. H. Goldenberg was called in respect of having allowed a dog out in the street without a muzzle, his Worship said: "What, again, Mr. Goldenberg?"

Defendant:—Yes, your Worship. A fine of $8 was imposed.

WHAT I SAW IN PARIS DURING THE NIGHT

Luxury Shops Looted and Burned: Mob Attacks the Louvre: Tube Stations as Trenches: Gas Mains Cut Open And Set on Fire

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, February 9.
I want to tell you what I, a Londoner, saw and heard in Paris during the night, writes a correspondent. I have seen:

Luxury shops along the boulevards and in the fashionable streets of the city burned and looted by mobs:

Gas mains cut open and set on fire:

Tube stations seized by the rioters and used as trenches:

Mounted policemen charging at barricades amid shouts of "Thieves, murderers, assassins."

During the night a mob tried to smash the windows of the Louvre Museum with iron bars. They had to be driven off by mounted police.

Another mob managed to isolate the St. Lazare station for a time and held it against police attacks.

I arrived at the Gare du Nord yesterday evening and managed after a good deal of difficulty to find a man with a car who was willing to drive me round the city.

We drove through practically deserted streets to the Place Vendôme, and from there followed the Rue de Castiglione, towards the Tuilleries Gardens and the place de la Concorde.

A Baton Charge

We turned into the Boulevards. No cafes open, no animated terraces. And suddenly the road ahead of us was black with people.

We left the car in a side street, and made our way through the crowds.

There must have been a thousand people. We pushed our way through to the front line. A shrill whistle, the screech of brakes as a couple of police lorries arrived on the scene, from which jumped out some hundred police, who started immediately to rush at the foremost men in the crowd.

The crowd lined up across the middle of the street and began shouting "Assassins, murderers!"

Then they turned back to run fifty yards before turning round once more and facing the police with "Thieves, murderers."

The white batons beamed under the electric standards.

The batons fell with a thud. I ran for cover. My companion received a hearty kick in the chin.

Barricaded Hotels

All the hotels were closely barricaded for fear the crowds should take them by storm. Heavy iron grilles had been drawn in front of the entrances with just a tiny space, so that any guests returning at this hour of the night might not be altogether locked out.

We turned back into the Boulevard de la Madeleine. Here a tremendous crash of glass told us that three of the huge shop windows of the store Trois Quartiers had come tumbling down.

A barricade in the middle of the street, made up of bits of broken lorries, divided police from the insurgents.

Water Mains Broken

Four more newspaper kiosks burning brightly, a couple of water mains gushing water several feet high, tar blocks dug out from the middle of the roads set on fire and flaring, three gas mains pierced and set on fire to—these gave up huge flames of white fire.

The battle turned, and became more concentrated at the corner of the Rue Royale. A heavy iron lamp-post was wrenched away and sent crashing into a glass shop front. The Restaurant Weber was a field dressing station, with perhaps a dozen ambulances stationed in front of it.

Around the entrance stood a crowd watching the wounded being taken in and out. Doctors inside made the first dressing before sending them off to the various hospitals.

The Champs Elysees was fairly crowded. The crowd began tearing up wooden benches that lined the streets, and were throwing them in the middle of the roadway. And these, with a good deal of broken glass, made driving difficult.

Half-a-dozen trees had been wrenched down and set fire to, the twigs and bark crackling curiously.

Every kick along the Champs

ARMY MEDICAL CHIEF

Major-Gen. Hartigan

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 9.
The War Office announces that Major-Gen. J. A. Hartigan, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., M.B., Hon. Physician to the King, at present Deputy Director of Medical Services, Aldershot Command, has been appointed Director-General, Army Medical Services, with effect from March 1, 1934.

He will succeed Gen. Sir Harold B. Fawcus, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., D.C.L., M.B., Hon. Physician to the King, who is retiring at his own request.

Gen. Hartigan, who is 59 years of age, entered the R.A.M.C. in 1899, having taken his medical and surgical degrees at Durham. He served through the South Africa War, being present at, among other engagements, the Battle of Paardeberg. During the European War he was mentioned in despatches six times, and was created a D.S.O. and a C.M.G. The C.B. was conferred on him last year.

Elysees had been torn down and was burning furiously.

At the Arc de Triomphe was an overturned bus.

Back we went towards the Tuilleries. Here for the first time I saw an attack on the crowd by the Mobile Guards, who drew their swords during the advance. The swords flashed menacingly in the light of the lamp-posts.

What was left of the terrace of a cafe was destroyed in the rush.

Hammers for Rioters

Suddenly came towards us a big motor-lorry driven by a young man with a tweed cap.

It was filled with spades, hammers, and picks, which a couple of fellows inside were throwing out to the crowd, inviting them to break windows with these implements.

A police car saw them. It sounded its siren, and in a moment some half a dozen other police cars and lorries were giving chase.

So many people had used the entrances to the Underground as cover for trench warfare that the authorities closed the stations in the centre of Paris, and trains ran through these stations without stopping.

Savage Attack On Mrs. Hunter Recalled

YOUNG COOLIE ON TRIAL

Temporary Insanity plea By Defence

The savage and apparently unprovoked attack on Mrs. Florence Annie Hunter on the afternoon of November 30 by her cookboy, Tong Wing Kwok had a sequel at the Supreme Court yesterday when the said cookboy was charged before Mr. Justice Lindsell with intent to do Mrs. Hunter grievous bodily harm, or to maim, disfigure or disable her, and, alternatively, with malicious wounding.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney General, conducted the prosecution, and Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh Jones, appeared for the defence.

In her evidence Mrs. Hunter agreed with defending counsel that when the lad committed the crime he seemed "to have gone out of his mind."

MRS. HUNTER'S STORY OF THE AFFAIR

The accused pleaded "Not Guilty" and the following jury was empaneled: Messrs. F. H. Barnes (foreman), Man Chi Leong, L. A. Roberts, J. H. da Rosa, L. E. Politt, Ho Tung Son, and E. A. Griffiths.

Outlining the facts of the case, Mr. Fraser said Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hunter occupied the flat with their daughter and kept two servants, one of whom was away on November 30. Defendant was paid $10 a month and was given extra pay for the work he had to do at this particular time.

The evidence would be that he was a good-tempered boy on excellent terms with his master and mistress and that, without any known reason, he attacked her savagely and unexpectedly while she was alone in the flat between four and five o'clock that day. He then made off. Mr. Hunter returned to the house, informed the police, and took his wife to hospital where she remained for some weeks. Meanwhile the boy had disappeared, but his father was found and it was he who offered to go to the country and find his son. He went, accompanied by local Chinese detectives and persuaded his son to return to the Colony where he was arrested.

Accused made a statement in answer to a charge preferred against him on December 7 that the reason for wounding his mistress was "I lost my temper." The statement also said: "She was my mistress and I should not have come in."

Medical Evidence

Dr. P. F. Court, of the Kowloon Hospital, said Mrs. Hunter was admitted at 8.20 p.m. on the day of the incident, suffering from injuries to her forehead, scalp, and face, the incisions being two or more inches long. There was a deep cut on the left wrist, and the bones had been cut and fractured. Mrs. Hunter had suffered loss of blood and was in serious danger of losing her life.

The injury to her wrist would result in permanent damage. The fracture of the forearm might have been caused by a fall or blow with a heavy blunt instrument but the knife must have been used with considerable force. Mrs. Hunter left the hospital on January 17, but was still receiving treatment.

Victim's Story

Mrs. Florence Annie Hunter, who still appeared to be suffering from the effects of her injuries, was then called. On Mr. Fraser's suggestion she was given a chair in the witness box. Witness said she was 54 years old.

"I had employed accused for nine months and while the cookboy was away we did the housework together. He received $12 a month and 20 cents a day extra during this time, with an occasional tip. He was on quite friendly terms with us, and we had taken him twice to the beach. Once he asked to have his photograph taken there with the dog and we gave him two copies of the picture. I never had any cause to find fault with him as he was bright, good-tempered, and a good worker."

"Everything happened as usual on November 30 until about 1.45 p.m. when the coolie left the flat. I had told him to return at 4.45 p.m. to take the dog out for his daily walk and also to get some bread while he was out. I was sitting in the dining-room at 4 p.m. when I heard a door close and as the dog's chain was gone I thought the coolie had taken the dog out."

"A little later the back door opened and I saw him with the dog. I asked him if he had remembered the bread. He muttered something and went out by the back way. I was going to put the kettle on a few minutes afterwards when I saw the coolie in the hall holding the knife in one hand and running his fingers along the edge.

The knife was produced and identified by witness who continued: "He said 'Master say this belong Ah Chung's knife.' Before I could say or do anything, he struck me in the face with the knife. I put up my arm to protect my face. He struck me four or five times. I was too far gone to know how many times. He went out and I moaned and screamed as loudly as I could but nobody came."

Mr. Fraser: Did you scream before he went out?

Witness: Yes, four or five times. Then I went to the bathroom and tried to wash myself. I felt that I was fainting, so I gently let myself out to the floor.

Did you see the dog about?—Not at the time of the attack.

"Gone Out Of Mind."

Mr. Macnamara (cross-examining): Can you suggest any reason for the attack?—No.

At the preliminary examination you said "His attack on me was almost as if he had gone out of his mind?"—Yes.

Mr. Fraser (re-examining): Is this something you have thought of yourself or has it been suggested to you?—I thought it myself at the time and I have thought of it since.

Anyhow, you ground your opinion on the fact that it was so unusual and unexpected?—Yes.

His Lordship:—You say he muttered something when you spoke about the bread. Was he annoyed?—I thought so at the time, but afterwards I thought he could not be.

The Foreman of the Jury asked if accused spoke good pidgin English, and witness replied that he did.

Mr. Fraser proposed to call Mr. Hunter, but on his Lordship pointing out that the facts had gone unchallenged by the defence, he said he would merely question Mr. Hunter on one point.

Good Coolie.

Mr. Hunter said accused had studied English for several months and was one of the best coolies he had known.

Sub. Inspector C. Rozesky said he inspected the flat and found considerable quantities of blood on the floor.

Cross-examined, he agreed that there was nothing in the accused's quarters to indicate that he had prepared for flight.

Kwong Lun, C113, said he accompanied accused's father to Mun Tung village where he found the coolie. They returned to the Colony where the arrest was made.

Cross-examined, witness said accused returned to Hongkong voluntarily.

Accused's father, Tong Siu, of No. 283 Shanghai Street, Yaumatei, said his son was born on January 23, 1919, and had been in Hongkong five years.

In reply to Mr. Macnamara, witness said his son used to visit him at least once a month, bringing about $5 with him. During the six months prior to the incident, he had complained of headaches. In 1932 he fell very ill and he sometimes "used to stare and pay no attention."

Tam Wai-hin, interpreter of the Water Police Station, gave evidence of accused's statement in reply to the charge, on December 7. He said that he gave way to temper and was now sorry.

The Defence.

The case for the prosecution having been closed, Mr. Macnamara addressed the court.

He said:—"In a case like this, it is hardly necessary, I think, to warn you, but I do sound a note of warning, at the very beginning, that I am quite sure that you will

U.S.S. TULSA

Due In Port To-Day

The U.S.S. Tulsa will arrive in Hong Kong to-day from Swatow and is expected to remain until March 18th.

The "Tulsa," Commander F. G. Reinicke, U.S. Navy, Commanding, is assigned to the South China Patrol basing on Hong Kong.

The Tulsa departed from Hong Kong on 3 January 1934 for Foochow, China, participating in the landing of Consular Guards that took place at the time the Nationalists Forces took over Foochow. After departure from Foochow the ship visited Amoy and Swatow en route to Hong Kong.

The U.S.S. Tulsa is a seagoing gunboat with a complement of 147 bluejackets and 30 marines.

The following Officers are attached to the ship:—

Commanding—Commander Frederick G. Reinicke.

Executive Officer—Lieutenant Norman E. Millar.

Engineer Officer—Lieutenant John H. Leppert.

First Lieutenant—Lieutenant Boltwood E. Dodson.

Gunners Officer—Lieutenant (jg.) James L. Thibault.

First Division Officer—Ensign Julius E. Smith Jr.

Second Division Officer—Ensign George G. Molumphy.

Medical Officer—Lieutenant (jg.) Leon H. Warren.

Supply Officer—Lieutenant Walter E. Scott.

Assistant to Supply Officer—Chief Pay Clerk Vans R. Pope.

Commanding Officer, Marine Detachment—First Lieutenant Raymond A. Anderson.

"WHO'S WHO"

The following families of Officers are at present living in Hong Kong:—

Mrs. F. G. Reinicke, wife of Commander F. G. Reinicke.

Mrs. John R. Chadwick, Mother of Mrs. Reinicke.

Mrs. N. E. Millar, wife of Lieut. N. E. Millar.

Mrs. L. H. Warren, wife of Lieut. (jg.) L. H. Warren.

Mrs. G. G. Molumphy, wife of Ensign G. G. Molumphy.

While at Hong Kong the ship will be given the usual quarterly inspection conducted by Captain J. P. Lannon, U.S. Navy, Commander South China Patrol.

Upon departure from Hong Kong the U.S.S. Tulsa will visit South China ports en route Shanghai and after a brief visit in Shanghai the Tulsa will proceed to North China (Hsinho and Chefoo) for the usual summer exercises.

not allow your feelings in any way to influence your judgment.

"A crime of this sort, if it is not justified in some way, is a very terrible thing and anyone who has heard the story this lady had told you can have nothing but commiseration and sympathy for her. It has already been made clear on the evidence of the Crown alone that there must be something more in this case than meets the eye at first sight."

"Mrs. Hunter has said, in the admirable evidence she has given, that her servant must have gone temporarily mad. That precisely fits in with the real facts of the case—that when this boy made the attack for no assignable reason, he must have been deranged. A doctor who has had him under observation for some time while he has been kept in the custody, which is now required by Ordinance, will give evidence to this effect. The doctor is Dr. Pringle."

Subject to this

"It is not suggested that accused is insane now—he could not be tried if that were so. One of the most singular things in the evidence for the Crown is the remark made by accused just before the attack, 'Master say this knife belongs Ah Chung,' which was a remark absolutely void of meaning, and his statement later to the police bears signs of a deficient mind."

The medical evidence will be that persons who have been subject to epilepsy and epileptic fits—as I shall prove the accused is—can make such an assault as this, and I shall suggest that this is the only rational explanation."

Prisoner's Story.

Prisoner then entered the witness box.

In reply to his counsel, he said he had four fits, one in the country when he was 10 years of age, once whilst at the Bank Line as a messenger, once at the flat where he worked, and once in the street.

Witness identified a messenger boy who assisted him on the second occasion he was ill.

In reply to Mr. Macnamara, defendant said that he did not know what he did—he had not thought that such a thing could have happened. His relations with Mrs. Hunter were very good, and he had no reason whatever for attacking her.

In reply to Mr. Fraser, accused said the first fit he could recall occurred six years and 20 days ago, according to Chinese reckoning. He was then in the country, play-

Fascism And Mussolini

MR. DE MARTIN'S IMPRESSIONS OF MODERN ITALY

Signor Mussolini has given to the Italians confidence in their country. Not long ago it was not rare to hear Italians speak depreciatingly of Italy and compare it unfavourably with other lands. Nowadays one hears little of that sort of talk. Rather on all sides there is an almost continuous demonstration of exuberant self-confidence," said Mr. G. P. de Martin, M.B.E., M.A. in the course of his lecture on "Impressions of Italy in the year XI. of the Fascist Era," at the Hong Kong Hotel Grill Room yesterday.

Signor A. Bianconi, the Consul General of Italy, was in charge of the arrangements and the lecture was listened to with much interest by a large gathering.

Mr. de Martin said inter alia:—

"In attempting to speak to you of Italy, of Fascism and of the Stato Corporativo, I would ask you to remember that my presence in Italy during most of last year and in previous years was due to artistic, literary and climatic attractions and I had no intention of studying either the economic conditions or the political architecture of the country."

"In the early days of the Fascist Revolution we regarded it merely as the advent of another political party and treated it with the inattention such an unexhilarating occurrence would desire. Later on we knew better and last year I tried to make up my arrears of information and find out how it began."

"When the politicians who were, nominally, in control of the government, realised that the dissatisfaction of the loyal and patriotic elements of the country was likely to be manifested by their presence in Rome, they decided to declare a state of siege. A constitutionally declared state of siege would have meant summoning the army to repel the Fascists!"

Mussolini Acts

"In Italy, as in Great Britain, the head of the army is the King. His signature was necessary and was refused. No gentlemen," said His Majesty, "I know my people better than you." This is perhaps a good opportunity to correct an impression which was and may still be prevalent outside Italy."

The movement which placed Signor Mussolini was not a palace revolution and the men who marched on Rome were not a mob. Signor Mussolini did not start for Rome until he had learned by telephone from the side of camp that the King was willing that he should do so—and I suggest to you that this must be one of the most significant trunk call messages in the short history of the telephone."

"With the approach of the Fascist, the municipalities, much as their predecessors had done when they took charge. Some of them, I am told, have become Fascist."

At one time we were inclined to see in the advent of Fascism merely the suppression of this lawlessness. That is, of course, quite wrong. It is true that the communists were suppressed but so, and more importantly, was the rotten political system that had made them possible."

"The constructional phase of the Revolution may be regarded as beginning with the laws of January 1926 and the aim was to reorganise productive forces in a practical harmony of interests. I say you to understand that I use the word without any sentimental significance. Even before 1926, strikes and lock-outs had practically disappeared from the armoury of economic strife, and in that year they were rendered illegal by legislation."

ing with other children. He seized the scooter with which he was making mud pies and struck the other children with it. He also used his fists. The seizure lasted 10 minutes, and when it ceased, he went to play with the children as before.

In answer to his Lordship, accused said that he dropped the knife after the attack on Mrs. Hunter, and that was the precise moment when he "came to."

Became Frightened.

It being pointed out that this statement conflicted with the discovery of the knife on the bridge connecting with the servant's quarters, accused declared that he picked up the knife and dropped it on the bridge, this being because he had become frightened on realising what he had done with it.

When charged, he had not told the police about the occasional fits he had, except to deny the charge, this again because he was frightened to admit the attack.

This concluded the defendant's evidence.

The case was then adjourned until Friday afternoon at 2.30, the defendant being remanded under the Juvenile Offenders Ordinance to the place of detention provided by that Ordinance.

For Country's Sake

"I have said that Fascism on its practical side is the Corporate State; that is the organisation of all the productive forces of the country for the country's sake, and only incidentally for the benefit of private persons. Considerably more than the theatrical features of Fascism which have attracted so much attention outside Italy, the Corporate State is the essence of the Italian contribution to present day difficulties. Signor Mussolini has created a system, replacing the negative principle of the class struggle and the individualism of economic units, that is firms, corporations and private persons, with the subordination of all productive forces labour, management, technique, and for the matter of that, land, to the State, regarded, however, not only, nor even primarily as a political and social organism, but above all as a spiritual entity."

"It is inevitable that this redistribution of the nation, not into competing classes but into converging productive forces will lead to the liquidation of social classes. Indeed this is already happening and it may be asked where in the new scheme does the old Italian aristocracy come. As the holder of wealth and power it has been completely eviscerated and I should suppose that the war has as much to do with that as anything that has happened since."

"But individual members of the order can and do fit themselves into the framework. They can and do find their niches in the national scheme under agriculture, industry or commerce, though still existing informally and unofficially as an element conservative of the traditions of the country."

Italy and Agriculture

"Under Fascism agriculture and rural economics generally, including the problem of bringing into cultivation hitherto unproductive land, afforestation and re-afforestation—are considered in relation to the economic necessities of the country as a whole. They are the driving force."

"Under the agriculture section of the National Council of Corporations a technical survey of a sort of twentieth century Domesday, has been made and it is intended that in a few years no land which can be made productive will be allowed to lie idle either from lack of capital or enterprise on the part of the owner. If lack of funds be the reason for unproductive land the State will provide them and when once land has been found by the agricultural experts to be capable of productivity it will be cultivated—preferably with the co-operation of the owner."

The Fascist Salute

"I have mentioned the Fascist salute which is now almost universal. It was not in use among soldiers last year, but since leaving Italy I have read in the newspapers that it is being adopted by the army. Whether it is used in the navy I do not know. Just before we left, hotel staffs had been instructed to use it for welcoming and speeding their guests."

"I wonder if you are thinking that I have looked at Italy through rosy glasses. For Italians, things are grim in Italy rather than rosy in spite of the indomitable cheerfulness of the people—which seemed specially indomitable between twelve and one at night when I was trying to get to sleep."

"By sinking, or being obliged to sink their private interests for public advantage, people cannot see much chance of ceasing work some day and having a few years of ease. I remember very well one man talking to me in this strain. He saw no future on himself or anyone of his generation and not much for those now growing up. Perhaps things would be better after them. We have," he said, "few natural resources and foreign goods are heavily taxed." And just as I was thinking that I had at last met the elusive anti-Fascist he went on: "It is almost intolerable. There would be another revolution if we did not utterly trust Mussolini." It always seemed to come back to that—trust in Signor Mussolini."

BUS SERVICES

Judging by the absence of complaints from the travelling public and fewer breakdowns of vehicles on the various routes, there are indications of a better working of the motor bus services both on the Island and in Kowloon. Eight months ago, soon after the two Chinese companies were granted the exclusive operating rights, there was a general outcry against the service. Dislocation of the routine in some form naturally was to be expected since the drivers were not familiar with the routes taken over from the other concern, while probably some of them were new hands. The methods of some of the drivers and conductors had been occasionally a sore point with travellers, and in the new order of things the drivers brought over from Kowloon were expected to operate among other acquisitions, a service which had gained no little prestige under the control of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels. The elimination of complaints and the placing of the services on a proper business footing, was vital to the companies concerned in order to retain, not only the goodwill of the public, but also the monopoly itself, as the unsatisfactory conditions provoked a stern official rebuke, while one or two prosecutions also had to be effected. It seems now that the promise of the managements concerned to remedy defects have been partly fulfilled as the services are working better, while the drivers and conductors appear to realise their duty to the public. The operation of motor bus services in the Colony has been held by those who have gone through the experience to be an unremunerative enterprise, due principally to the high capital cost of the vehicles and the heavy maintenance charges. The vehicles in use at present satisfy the demand for modern travel. Memories of the vehicles of ten years ago are not pleasant, but the public had to be content with the process of development in motor bus transport just as much as they had got accustomed to the old single-deck trams. A much needed reform was the replacing of the old green buses on the Talkoo and Happy Valley routes, which were by no means comfortable. The orange coloured vehicles are a great improvement. On the dashboards and underneath there may be discerned the engines and other gear of the old Guy vehicles, in commission for better service after a thorough overhaul.

Bus conductors in Japan, soft-voiced and nimble dancers, chant songs into which are subtly introduced the names of stopping places and beauty spots along the route. We would not wish to be entertained or informed in this manner by our local conductors, but they should be able to direct a passenger when information is requested in English. Some of them are ignorant of the English equivalents of the important stopping places and occasionally passengers have to assist. There was talk about a "school for conductors" which was a good idea. Moreover the regulations for new conductors provide that they know some geography. Places such as the China Building, Central Market, Broadwood Road, Government Civil Hospital, or Jordan Road, La Salle College, Alhambra Theatre, Police Training School and Kowloon Hospital ought to be easily understood when information is requested and passengers seeking information on these matters should be assisted when nearing the closest stopping place.

There are many other ways in which improvements can be effected such as more information on the buses as to the routes through which they run. They are matters in which the public can assist with suggestions. For instance, the buses on the University via Garden Road and Queen's Road runs have no indicators as to their route other than the signs in front. Similarly the Talkoo and Happy Valley buses suffer from the same handicap, making it necessary for passengers to look in front, often missing the bus or deviating from "Safety First." Indicators affixed on the side of the buses or inside them would reassure passengers who are forced to board in a hurry.

CANTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, February 27.—A memorial service for the late Dr. Wu Chao Chu, who died in Hong Kong on January 2, will be held on March 14 at the Provincial Kuomintang Headquarters. The remains of Dr. Wu will be sent here on March 11 to be buried at Yat Mong Kong Cemetery near the graveyard of his distinguished father, Dr. Wu Ting Fang.

Educated in law at London University, Dr. Wu Chao Chu had a brilliant diplomatic career. He was Minister of Foreign Affairs at Nanking in 1927 and later to Washington, D.C., as Chinese Minister. In 1932, he was appointed Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, but did not take up the post owing to insufficient funds earmarked for reconstruction and education.

"Big King" Yim alias Lai Yim, a notorious bandit leader of Tung Kwoon, was caught last Saturday in a tow boat by the provincial police as he was attempting to escape from Tai Ping, a town in Tung Kwoon, to Canton. He was sent back to-day to Tung Kwoon City for trial. His arrest removed a menace in Tung Kwoon county especially along the stations of the Canton-Kowloon Railway.

There is a $30,000 reward for the apprehension of "King" Yim, and this sum will be claimed by the Tung Kwoon county police.

Rice trade in Kwangsi is in a state of stagnation following the imposition by the Kwangsi Provincial Government of an inter-provincial transit duty of 50 cents per catty for every catty of rice. There is no demand for Kwangsi rice in this province, and the transit tax is equivalent to 55 cents local currency.

Merchants here do not order rice from Kwangsi, as the price is going down. There is plenty of native and imported rice in the local market, hence Wuchow rice meets with no demand here.

The Sinson passenger plane of the South-west Commercial Aviation Company took off this afternoon for a trial trip from the White Cloud Airfield for Lungchow, West Kwangsi, via Wuchow and Nanking. If possible, the flight will be extended to Kweichow capital of Kweichow province, which is in the north-west of Kwangsi.

Regular service between towns of the South-west will start after the completion of the trial flight.

Canton, February 27.—Chairman Lin Yuen-kai with General Li Yang-khai, Commander of the 3rd Army Corps, left for the east district yesterday for attending the Pacification Conference and investigation of the people's conditions in the area along the East River. Before his departure, Chairman Lin told the press that he goes to the east only for the purpose of attending the Pacification Conference and inspecting the reconstruction and pacification works of different counties in the east district. The period of time in which he will stay in the east is about ten days.—Central Press.

Canton, February 27.—According to the 3rd part of the plan of rural education, each village must establish at least one primary school, and in case of small population which cannot afford to do so a combination system may be adopted. The period in which this partial plan must be carried is from February this year to April 1 next year. Orders have been sent to different county governments by the Provincial Department of Education urging them to make haste in putting it into practice.—Central Press.

ANGLO-JAPANESE TEXTILE DISCUSSION

First Hitch Deplored

London, Feb. 28.—After a meeting to-day between the British delegates in the Anglo-Japanese textile discussions, and Lancashire Committee on Japanese competition, it was stated that the committee had placed on record its regret that difficulty should have arisen at this early stage on the question of geographical areas to be covered by the discussions and unanimously endorsed the policy and the action of the negotiating committee. The Committee felt that world-wide scope for discussions was essential if they were to serve the object which British interests have throughout regarded as indispensable. Hope was expressed that following the Anglo-Japanese discussions to take place on Wednesday the present difficulties would be overcome.—British Wireless.

SNOWFALL IN PEIPING

Good Omen To Farmers

Peiping, Feb. 27.—The winter has taken a further lease in North China with slight but steady fall of snow which is mantling Peiping white. However, to-day's snowfall is welcomed by farmers as a good omen because it will kill insects.—Reuter.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—S.A. commissioners with collection box in hand took an active part in the collection campaign which started over the week-end in the streets of the capital and which proved to be a great success. Up to now more than RM 115,000 have been collected. In one box alone was found besides several 10 and 20 Marks pieces a cheque for over RM 1,000.00. Actively participating were also Prince August Wilhelm and the state commissioners Lippert.—At a diplomatic reception the Charge D'affaires for Uruguay also collected for the relief fund.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—For the fourth time in succession Reichsbank return shows a substantial loss of gold and foreign exchange reserves, thus again confirming the views expressed by the Reichsbank at the recent Berlin Transfer Conference with long term creditors that any increase of cash transfer payments beyond 50 per cent. could only result in depletion of the Reichsbank currency cover reserves. The next transfer conference will be held in April when it is hoped that the foreign creditors will accept this tangible evidence that the Reich is making the utmost efforts to keep all obligations as far as the present world conditions permit. The percentage of note-cover for February 23 has dropped from 9.8 as against 10.4 in February 15 and 10.9 on February 7. Gold stock 20.9 million Marks lower at 302.4 millions while foreign currency reserves down 21 millions at 7.9 millions making a total drop of 23.0 millions to 320.3 millions. Note circulation has shrunk 66.3 millions to 3218.6 millions. FINANCES OF CANTON

Public Utilities Progress

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Feb. 27.—Banknotes of the Canton Municipal Bank jumped up to-day from 87 to 91 cents in a dollar and had a tendency of restoring their face value. The Bank has plenty of reserve to meet payment of all its notes.

According to an official report, the Canton Municipal Government collected $7,485,000 during the past year, while the expenditure amounted to $7,169,600, leaving a surplus of some $315,200. All payments to the Municipal Government are now required to be made one-half in notes of the Canton Municipal Bank, the rest being in redeemable notes of the Kwangtung Provincial Bank. It is believed that these municipal notes will recover their full value in a very short time.

Public utilities in Canton are making progress in spite of the dull times. More bus lines have been in operation since the past year, and all parts of the city are connected by these vehicles. Most companies are maintaining the service with new buses as required by the municipal authorities. The new buses are bigger and more comfortable to the passengers.

Efforts are being made to overhaul the water works at Tseng Po in view of the increasing number of houses that are supplied with running water. Native coal is used to drive the steam pump, and by using native coal the water authorities save about $1500 a month. The Tungshan Water Works is installed with an electric pump, while the water is to be purified by a new filtering machine.

With the operation of the new electric power station in Honam, that suburb is well supplied with electricity. This relieves the main station on the Bund, which can give a better feeding to the western suburbs. Houses are required to install the meters outside of the premises as a means to prevent theft of electricity.

HENRY PU YI'S NEW NAME

Emperor Kang Teh

AMERICAN LEGISLATION AND CHINA'S TRADE

Shanghai Appeal To President Roosevelt

A lengthy cable containing the considered views of the Shanghai Foreign Residents' Association has been sent to President Roosevelt in connection with the silver question. The views submitted represent those of twelve nationalities.

The message "Earnestly requests you to consider the effect on China of any proposed silver legislation. We consider it essential that legislation be limited as affecting the price of silver in the U.S.A. without affecting world prices."

"It is necessary for the prosperity of China that the price of silver must only be advanced proportionately as the general commodity prices advance. China escaped the major effects of world depression through her low silver, while other countries experienced a disastrous result owing to the high value of their currency unit and remedied it by devaluation."

"China's imports must be paid by exports, credits to China, or by draining the country's silver. The rise in silver would cause a disastrous collapse in land and commodity prices which we believe would necessitate an embargo or an export duty on silver, thus putting China on a manage currency."

MR. KUNG PREFERS SILENCE

Nanking, February 27. Interviewed by the Chinese Press on his return here from Shanghai this morning, Mr. H. H. Kung, Chinese Finance Minister, declined to discuss the silver question beyond saying that the matter is receiving the Government's closest consideration.

Meanwhile it is reported that the silver question will be discussed tomorrow by the Central Political Council.

THE DESTINY OF SILVER

Dangers and Contradictory Motives in Currency Inflation Proposals

It would at least be a little helpful if those who want to see "something done for silver" would segregate their arguments into natural classes, writes Thomas F. Woodlock in the "Wall Street Journal."

If those Senators, representing States interested in producing silver, who want somebody—if possible the United States—to buy their constituents' product at higher prices, would be satisfied to say so with frankness, and leave to others the merits of bimetalism and the interests of the silver-using East, the cause of silver would not suffer.

If those who are interested in "Eastern trade" would note the fact that of all the countries in the world these silver-using countries alone in this distressful year, seem to have done a larger volume of "foreign trade" than they did in pre-war years, and tell us how and why that requires us to raise the price of silver we might better understand their arguments.

And if advocates of bimetalism who tell us on the one hand that it is necessary to remonetize silver in order to raise prices of commodities, and that on the other hand the quantity of available silver is so small that there is no danger of Gresham's law operating, would elect one or other of these stools to sit upon, we should be less confused. They cannot have it both ways. A small addition of silver to the "stock of money" will obviously not affect commodity prices much; addition of enough to put prices up would in all probability set Gresham's law working, and drive out good money with bad.

One thing at least can be said for silver as against all other methods of tinkering with the "money unit" in order to put up prices of commodities: the "management" of silver currency will be in nature's hands. She will determine how much "money" is to issue. With all her remarkable capacity for supplying things when they are badly needed (and there is profit in their production) she still cannot match the printing press. If we must have currency inflation, by all means let it be "silver inflation" and not paper. But let us measure the probable results, the good against the bad.

We are told that an advance in the price of silver to 40 cents an ounce "would increase the consumptive power of the majority of the population of the agricultural world 50 per cent. actually, and an added per cent. psychologically," and we are told that "silver is used by 75 per cent. of the world's agricultural population." We are

ANXIETY ABOUT AUSTRIA

Basic Ideas For The Future

Vienna, Feb. 27.

The situation in Austria is very obscure and is leading to general nervousness in Europe. Messages from the provinces report further movements of troops but, an official announcement explains that only a few companies of the Heimwehr Auxiliaries have been transferred to new points in Upper Austria in order to ensure tranquillity and order.

It is stated that the reported movements of troops near the frontiers of the neighbouring countries are merely precautionary and do not constitute a threat unless attempts are made to alter the frontiers by force.

According to Prince Starhemberg, the basic ideas for the future Austrian Constitution is a transitional period which will take fifteen years will be identical to those of Italian fascism.

As Austria, Italy and Hungary have turned their backs on democracy, their friendship can become deeper, and a practical form of co-operation is of secondary importance. The failure to oust democracy must lead to the coming Nazism. The unbridgeable gulf between Austrian Fascists and Herr Hitler arises from their determination to keep Austria independent of the insistence for a Christian Austria and the rejection of the Utopian race theory.—Reuter.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TALKS

A Tentative Agreement

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1893. Received, February 27, 7.30 p.m.)

Rome, February 27. An official communiqué regarding the conversations between Signor Mussolini and Captain Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, says that both statesmen have examined the fresh Anglo-Italian Disarmament Memorandum.

They have arrived at an agreement, as to the steps to be taken, especially as to the possibility of discovering a new basis for a general understanding.

Although the Italian press have not made any editorial comments on the subject, they appear to be optimistic as a consequence of the communiqué.

An agreement between Mussolini and Eden appears to be confirmed by the fact that no further interview between them is foreseen before Captain Eden leaves for Paris where the decision must be taken as to whether the compromised formula agreed upon will prove acceptable to the French Government.—Transocean Kuo Min.

NO RISKS TO BE TAKEN

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1893. Received, February 27, 7.00 p.m.)

Paris, February 27. No financial experiments will be risked by the French Government, so the Minister for Finance, M. Germain Martin, declared in the course of a speech to a body of bankers, in which he stressed that neither inflation nor devaluation was contemplated for the re-organization of French finances which will be achieved by economic financial reconstruction with the co-operation of all men with goodwill.—Transocean Kuo Min.

MARCHERS AT DOWNING ST.

Bold Retort By Leader

London, February 27. Notwithstanding the Premier's refusal to receive a deputation of the unemployed, a Marchers' deputation of forty Marchers, headed by the Commoners Maxton and McGovern, marched to 10, Downing Street and demanded to see the Premier.

Upon the Secretary stating that Mr. MacDonald was not even in the building, Maxton told the Secretary that he regarded the incident as a personal insult and he would raise the matter in the House of Commons.

Addressing the deputation outside, Maxton dwelt on the peaceable nature of the steps taken hitherto, but said that if the government closed all constitutional doors against the unemployed, there were other doors with which they will have to deal.—Reuter.

Like Talking Religion

There is something about silver that invests all talk about it with that curious tendency toward intense feeling that characterizes discussions in religion, party politics and single tax. Most people seem to believe that there is a mysterious link between the price of silver and commodity prices in general, and that to put up the price of silver is to put up all commodity prices. Not a few, it seems, believe that it is the fall in silver that has pulled all prices down. Whence the atmosphere of superstition that surrounds the white metal?

It is this writer's humble opinion that it would be a good thing if silver could again be "monetized" in some way, if only to dissipate the curious hopes and fears that prevail concerning its destiny. But he fervently hopes that pending such "monetization" wholly or in part, no nation—least of all our own—will attempt any preliminary "valorization" à la Bland act of 1878 or Sherman act of 1890. That it seems to him, is what our "silver Senators" are really after.

ITALY GOING OFF GOLD?

Rumours Caused By Fall Of The Lira

London, Feb. 27.

The recent weakness of the lira has given rise to rumours that Italy is to follow Czechoslovakia's example. Sound bankers point out that the weakness of the lira is seasonal. But it is aggravated by withdrawals of funds which the Italian emigrants to America previously transferred in order to safeguard against depreciation of the dollar. The lira after touching a discount of over 300 per cent. in relation to the franc is now slightly recovering.

The "Financial Times" Paris Correspondent states that a pension exists as to the future of the franc and points out that the Treasury which was obliged to meet maturities of about £120,000,000 sterling before the end of July relies on the holders agreeing to renew their holdings, but if bills are not renewed, if public expenditure is not drastically cut down and if the budget is not properly balanced, then inflation is inevitable.

One other great danger is that the persistently increasing production costs of French manufacturers are rapidly losing foreign overseas markets.

The high tariffs, quotas, etc., are likely to result in increased cost of living and therefore higher wages, thus accentuating the difficulties.

The paper states it is important that French producers secretly favour the revaluation of the franc as it is convinced that the franc was stabilised at too high a figure.—Reuter.

SILVER MARKET

(From Our Special Correspondent)

London, February 27.

Following are the Silver Quotations on the London market today:—

Spot	Feb. 27	Feb. 28
20.3/16	20.9/16
Forward	20 1/2	20 1/2

The London on New York cross-rate at the closing to-day was 5.03 1/2.

Strenuous Official Denial

Rome, Feb. 27. Rumours that Italy is contemplating leaving the gold standard are strongly denied by Signor Jung, the Finance Minister, who declares in his own name and in that of Signor Mussolini that the Italian Government is determined to maintain the lira, anchored to the gold standard as fixed by the Stabilization Law enacted on December 21, 1927.—Reuter.

BETTER WAY IS TO CUT PRICES

New York, Feb. 27. Leading bankers here are discussing the question of a further cut in the gold value dollar as commodity prices are not rising as anticipated, but some of the sections in Wall Street are of the opinion that a better way to raise prices will be to cut them, thereby stimulating a demand which in time will advance prices.—Reuter.

STAVISKY'S PRINCELY GENEROSITY

Some Of The Cheques He Issued

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Paris, February 27. The parliamentary commission enquiry into the Stavisky scandal began the work of examining eight hundred cancelled cheques issued by the late "Prince of Swindlers" in the course of the last period of his glamorous life.

Although only part of this amount have been sorted out so far, names of some of the payees revealed by the investigation give rise to further astonished comments on a large number of people belonging to politics, who profited from Stavisky's liberalities.

Outside of cheques totalling forty million francs made out by Stavisky to his own order, between seven or eight million francs worth of cheques were made payable to the Banque Amara, a similar total to Stavisky's secretary, Vonnagillo, three to four millions to Director Desbrosses of the Municipal Pawnshop in Orleans, several millions to the director of "Circus Hippique" Triboude, eight hundred thousand francs to former deputy Boyer and seven hundred thousand to the former aide to the Finance Ministry, Guibaud—among other prominent people on the list who benefited from Stavisky is the director of the National Socialist pedagogical "Aux Ecoles."

MANCHUKUO IN COMMONS

Sir John Replies To A Question

London, Feb. 27.

"I am not aware that the Manchukuo Department of Communications has made representations in regard to improved postal services between Europe and the Far East," said Sir John Simon, replying to Mr. Nunn in the House of Commons.

The Foreign Secretary added the question of settling the postal accounts had been raised.—Reuter.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE

America In Grip Of Storms

New York, Feb. 27.

The terrific snowstorm continues. There have been six deaths already in the Eastern States, while in four Southern States, sixteen were killed by tornadoes which have done great damage.

The Red Cross are rushing supplies to the devastated areas. A gang of 31,500 men are clearing the snow in New York. There are great snowdrifts throughout New Jersey.

The fishing fleet at Provincetown, Massachusetts, valued at half a million dollars, was threatened with destruction by being crushed in the harbour by ice floes or breaking away from their moorings. The fishermen were frantically trying to save the vessels, daringly walking on the larger floes and dragging the small boats to tow the larger craft.—Reuter.

DEATH ROLL NOW SIXTY

New York, February 27. The combined death toll throughout the country from the blizzard and tornadoes in the Southern States is now estimated at 60, including eight deaths in the New York district.

Following the cessation of a continuous snowstorm, a thirty-six hours' fight was begun to re-establish communications with the small towns where at least one passenger train and numerous freight trains were blocked by snow drifts. The task of clearing away the snow in New York will provide several days' work for 35,000 men.—Reuter.

Lhasa is about to have its own electric lights. The necessary equipment from England totalling many tons will be transported four hundred miles from Darjeeling by mules, yaks and Tibetan engineers, trained in England, will install the plant.—Reuter.

DIPLOMATIC AND POLITICAL SENSATION

Mysterious Death Of Soviet Embassy Official

Istanbul, February 27.

A first class sensation was created in diplomatic and political circles here by the death and mysterious circumstances in which Ivan Michin, 35 years old, Second Secretary to the Soviet Embassy at Ankara, was found dead in the bathroom of the Soviet Consulate half an hour before he was due to sail for Odessa, whether he was ordered last week on his return from Moscow by the OGPU, the Secret Police Organisation for whom he was working. One theory is that he preferred to kill himself rather than go back, another being that he was murdered for refusing to return.

The Turkish police incline to the belief that it was a case of murder.—Reuter.

PLUNGED OVER BRIDGE

Fatalities In Train Disaster

Pittsburg, Feb. 27.

At least five were killed and a score of others were injured in the derailment of a passenger train near here.

The engine and several coaches plunged over a bridge.—Reuter.

Due to frozen switch. New York, February 27. In the railway derailment mentioned earlier, it is now reported that 20 persons were killed and 40 injured.

It is believed that due to a frozen switch, the engine and tender plunged over the viaduct into the street below, but two sleeping cars and a dining car remained on the track.

The firemen with saws worked under the light of torches and cut through one of the coaches to reach the passengers. Forty persons had hitherto been sent to hospital, while a similar number had to be carried or assisted from the wreckage.—Reuter.

DR. HABICHT'S ULTIMATUM

No Trouble Feared

Vienna, Feb. 27.

The Chancellor's Office announces that Dr. Dollfuss is sending no reinforcements to the frontier and all is quiet along the Austro-German border.

Moreover, no trouble is anticipated to-morrow when Dr. Habicht's ultimatum expires.

Habicht threatened the renewal of anti-Government activities in Austria unless Dr. Dollfuss agreed to co-operate with the Nazis.—Reuter.

ALARMING SITUATION IN FRANCE

Mercantile Marine Laid Up

Paris, Feb. 27.

An alarmed situation has arisen in the French Mercantile Marine, about one-third of which is said to be laid up as a result of French Tariff policy, the fall of foreign currencies, particularly the pound to the dollar, and the foreign shipping subsidies.

The maritime deputation urged M. Doumergue to facilitate legislation to protect shipping, including a surtax of five per cent. on all import duties to provide unemployment benefit to the seamen, and the creation of free ports in France, the provision whereby subsidies are paid to French colonial growers of rubber and other products in future to be paid only to growers shipping products by French steamship lines.—Reuter.

ANGLO-YEMEN TREATY

Objects Revealed By Sir John Simon

London, Feb. 26.

Referring to the House of Commons to the treaty of friendship between the United Kingdom and India and Yemen recently signed by Colonel Reilly, British resident at Aden and representative of the Imam of Yemen, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon stated that before the treaty was signed, Colonel Reilly, reported that conditions attached by the United Kingdom Government to their consent to its conclusion had been fulfilled. These comprised the evacuation of those portions of territory of Aden Protectorate which were still in Yemen occupation, the release by the Imam of certain subjects of the chiefs of Aden Protectorate, and the raising of restrictions which had been placed by the Imam on overland trade between the protectorate and Yemen. The main object of the treaty was to settle the question of frontier between the Protectorate and Yemen. This had been done by mutual undertaking providing for the maintenance of the situation in regard to the frontier as it existed on the date of signing the Treaty and for the prevention of its violation pending negotiations for the final settlement to be initiated before the expiration of the present treaty, which is to remain in force for forty years. Sir John Simon added that the Government regarded the settlement as most satisfactory and consider that it reflected great credit on Colonel Reilly.—British Wireless.

HOME FOOTBALL

BEST OR WORST?

Scotland Disagrees About Cup Draw

Ask Edinburgh what it thinks of the Scottish Cup second round draw. "The worst ever!" Here we have the three leading clubs of the capital all chasing the Cup, and not a single tie in the city. On the other hand, only Celtic, of the Glasgow aspirants, have to leave the city.

The luck of the draw has gone all astray, but nobody can help that.

Apart from the starvation of Edinburgh, it is a round of thrillers. What better could the heart desire than Aberdeen v. Dundee! Yes, I know: Dundee v. Aberdeen. But the near North-east will go mad over the tie, remembering the great conflicts between the pair in past years.

DUNDEE'S DEED

Pittodrie is a ground of terrors for most clubs, but not for Dundee. Didn't they win handsomely there on their last League visit in September, since when Aberdeen have never been beaten at home, except by Rangers?

Dundee have gone back a bit since then. But Aberdeen have been the reverse of convincing in recent games. Largely because their forwards have lost their former scoring power.

THIRD LANARK AND CLARKE

Glasgow's Portion is two great ties of dubious issue and one not so speculative. For I cannot see Third Lanark in their unsettled state holding the Rangers, even at Cathkin Park.

Third Lanark's one great hope is that Bruce Clarke will be able to return to the forward line and give the big-hearted lead which was proving an inspiration until he was injured.

To some teams one man out means little, but to others it can be a very vital matter.

Since Neil Dewar went over the Border, Clarke has been the one man capable of getting the Third Lanark team to pull out a bit extra. You know what that means in a Cup-tie.

HEARTS AT HAMPDEN

It is unfortunate that next door to Cathkin Park there should be the opposition of Queen's Park and the Heart of Midlothian at Hampden.

It would be a popular move if one of the "ties" could be brought forward to Wednesday, and as this is the Edinburgh half-holiday a mid-week match at Hampden would be a sure attraction.

Queen's Park have not been playing well. From a brilliant opening which gave them five victories and two draws, they have fallen away alarmingly. The Hearts, on the other hand, have been coming along by leaps and bounds.

A run without defeat from December 16 to the closing days of January, with their defence surrendering no more than a single goal in a match, speaks for itself.

When they were at Hampden in September they could only draw, but since then they have beaten Queen's Park by 4-0 at Tynecastle. That score, I should say, about represents the relative merits of the teams at the moment.

CELTIC'S CUP KNACK

Both of last year's Finalists—Celtic and Motherwell—have been given a hard nut to crack. Celtic cannot forget that when they tried a fall with Ayr United at Somerset Park as late as November they came badly out of it.

That, however, can mean little to Celtic, who have the Cup-tie winning knack more pronounced than any team in the country. Their record proves that. How it is, nobody can tell, but it is there.

Motherwell's task against Partick Thistle at Firhill would seem, at first glance, to contain few elements of danger, for when they were there in October they won with comparative ease.

But Motherwell have suffered some unpleasant jolts since then, and it would really appear that their confidence has been shaken. What other theory can be suggested to explain their defeat by Clyde and Queen of the South at Fir Park?

PARTICK "NOT OUT"

Injuries certainly have handicapped them, but not to an extent that would explain their various set-backs.

I think Partick Thistle are capable of making a stand, for though they have still a forward problem, their defence from halfback to goal has settled down wonderfully since the year came in.

TWELVE?

Hamilton academicals have no reason to shake in their shoes when Falkirk arrive.

It is true the Academicals lost by a couple of clear goals at Brockville, but they are a different kind of fighting force at home, as a few of the strongest know to their cost.

I fancy we shall see twelve First Division clubs in the third round, though Kilmarnock may reduce the number by one. They have something to do to beat Albion something at Coatbridge. The Rovers have a few scores to pay off.

The ability of Leslie, the Walsall centre half, has attracted Chelsea's attention.

"Williams is priceless at the moment," was a Huddersfield Town official's reply to a query respecting their outside right.

There is a Cup-tie rule which says that when the colours of the competing clubs clash both clubs must change. Did Millwall break this rule by accepting the sporting action of Leicester City in allowing Millwall to use their own colours?

The hectic duels between centre forwards and "policemen" centre halves often lead to trouble. So it was good to see Roberts and Tilson having a hearty handshake after the Manchester city-Arsenal match.

Have David Jack and Alex James come to the end of their tether so far as Arsenal's first team is concerned? There are other clubs who might be pleased to make use of them.

What are the chances of a double event—Cup and League championship—for any team this season? It hasn't been done for thirty-seven years.

Members of the Football League Selection Committee were out and about yesterday. The Scottish League will be met on February 10. Maw (Leicester City) is a strong tip for inside right.

Fred Gamble, who has returned to the Reading team, has appeared as a professional actor on the West-end stage. George Mee (Mansfield) was the star turn in a Blackpool concert party last summer.

Weather is usually the cause of abandoned games, but Wrexham once had a match abandoned through a shot breaking the cross-bar.

Watford have adopted a stray Persian cat as their new mascot. The cat strolled in when Watford were beating Exeter.

McPherson, the Watford winger, scored a wonderful goal against Chelsea Reserves. If the ex-Reading player carries on like this his inclusion in the League side must be seriously considered.

Either Liverpool or Everton are likely to secure the transfer of Lowe, the Watford inside forward, in the near future.

E. Lawrence is in his third season with Notts County, but his goal against Southampton, was his first for the Meadow Laners, and it saved the game.

Covington, London Paper Mills (Dartford) F.C.'s seventeen-year-old goalkeeper, has declined an offer of a trial with Arsenal.

Two great discoveries of the season are two Welsh lads, named Jones; Leicester City's left back and the Wolves' inside forward.

Chelsea have been angling after young "Teddy" Gray, Deal Town's centre forward, who has signed amateur forms for Canterbury.

Frank McDonough, the former Thames goalkeeper, missed his first game for Blackpool a week ago. When he left Brentford for Thames he was given a free transfer. Now Blackpool assess his value at £4,000.

Margate, who lead the Southern League (Eastern Section), have eight men injured, but they have obtained three handy signatures in Peck (outside left) and Balsom (inside forward) from Exeter.

Robinson, Torquay's captain last season, now plays centre half for Margate in the Southern League.

The Spurs have renewed their interest in Weale, the Crewe Alexandra forward.

Northfleet's half-back line a few seasons ago was Evans (T.), Rowe, and Alford. Yesterday they were the Spurs' middle division. This shows the value of the nursery scheme.

The latest additions to the Spurs' "Devon Nursery" at Pwll are R. Kivver, a promising inside left, and E. Downs, a half-back.

Women "fans" in Leamington have formed a supporters' club to assist the town eleven.

West Ham reserves have topped the London Combination list of receipts and attendances for the past half-year.

MACKAY'S FUTURE

There is much speculation among Luton supporters as to the ultimate destination of that fine right back, Tom Mackay. In the ordinary course it would be expected that Luton would part with him to the highest bidder—and there should be some high bids after his splendid display against Arsenal.

Mackay himself has other ideas, and I believe is just as keen to join the Durham police as he was when the F.A. made him keep his contract with Luton at the start of the season.

London, Feb. 27. In a Division I League football match played yesterday, Sheffield Wednesday were beaten at home by Leeds United, the visitors scoring two goals to nil.—Reuter.

YESTERDAY'S CRICKET

Mitchell And Fincher Bat Well

In a friendly game played on the H.K.C.C. ground yesterday, the Volunteers drew with the home team.

The Volunteers should have won the match for they were many runs ahead of the Club at the close of play and it was only the time that robbed them of victory. The Club had only 105 runs for nine wickets when stumps were drawn while the Volunteers complied the comparatively big total of 178. E.J. R. Mitchell and E. C. Fincher batted well for the Volunteers, scoring 87 and 58 respectively, while G.R.M. Ricketts was the most successful bowler for the Club, capturing 6 wickets for only 20 runs.

T.M.L. Redmond was the top scorer for the Club, contributing 24. F. Baker took four wickets for 30 runs and Beck 3 for 26.

NEW YACHTING COMMODORE

Mr. Mann Succeeds Mr. James Neil

Shanghai February 24.

Mr. James Neil, the veteran yachtsman who followed so ably in the footsteps of the late Mr. E. T. Byrne as Commodore of the Shanghai Yacht Club, presided for the last time at the annual meeting held in the Metropole Hotel yesterday, voluntarily retiring in favour of a younger man on account of the very heavy work which must be done in order to bring the club successfully through a critical period. The unanimous choice of the members was for Mr. H. M. Mann (Vice-Commodore to Mr. Neil), who possibly is the most experienced of the yachtsmen now regularly sailing the river and estuary.

Supporting Mr. Mann in the ensuing year will be Messrs. C. Trenchard, Davis (Vice-Commodore), R. Lock (Rear-Commodore), C. B. Blake, J. G. B. Dewar, W. Hamilton (Sailing Committee), W. P. Rial, S. E. Faber (House Committee), F. R. Davey, R. L. Evans, O. D. Terrell (Houseboat Committee), I. R. B. Tuxford, hon. secretary; H. W. Carter, hon. treasurer.

The retiring Commodore gave the cheering news that the committee had gone ahead with the plans recently approved at an extraordinary meeting for an up-country residential club at Ming-hong and it was hoped that the club-house would be completed early in the season. He regretted that more sailing members had not availed themselves of the privilege of flying the Blue Ensign to which they were entitled under the Admiralty Warrant granted to the club, provided their boats were registered at the British Consulate.

It was something of which they should be proud and he trusted more Blue Ensigns would be seen in the coming season. The meeting discussed and passed various rules designed to attract more money and members to the club, the principal concern being to make an immediate success of the up-country club. It was mentioned that work on the latter actually had commenced and that the accommodation would be greater than at first suggested. The committee had been going into the matter of additional classes of small boats, to further encourage sailing, and at the moment were inclined to favour the "Star" class, but full particulars were not yet available.

NOTICE TO MARINERS

Gunnery Practice At Sau Chau Island

The Harbour Master has issued a notice to mariners to the effect that Gunnery practice will be carried out by H.M.S. Cicada at Sau Chau Island on Thursday, March 1, 1934.
All craft are thereby warned not to sail near the vicinity during the practice.

NEW FRENCH FIRM IN HONG KONG

Hardivilliers, Olivier & Co.

News which will probably be of interest to local industrialists and merchants is that the French firm of Hardivilliers, Olivier & Co., whose headquarters are in Shanghai, are opening a branch in Hong Kong, with the object of introducing into South China generally, the products of the many leading French factories of which the firm are the direct agents.

Messrs. Hardivilliers, Olivier & Co. are representatives of the great houses of de Wendel and Duvion, amongst other manufacturers of metal products of all kinds, of the Comptoir Franco-Belgo-Sarrol, manufacturers of steel tubes of every description—gas and water-pipes, boiler-tubes etc.; and of the firms of Pechiney, Cognac and Ugine as regards industrial chemical products.

In their machinery section they make a special feature of the fixed and marine motors of the famous firm of Renault, the pumps of Rateau and the textile machinery of the Societe Alsacienne de Constructions Mecaniques.

Messrs. Hardivilliers, Olivier & Co. are in a position to deal with any technical problem that may be submitted to them and to offer, for the realisation of any project, material of unquestionable quality, perfectly adapted in all circumstances to the purpose for which it is required. The new organisation will be under the able direction of Mr. Edouard P. Illiaquer, an engineer of long and varied experience.

ARMY'S NEW LIGHT MACHINE-GUN

"Dark Horse" Does Well In Tests

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 9. The need for a modern light machine-gun in the British Army, to replace the war-time Lewis gun that is still in use, is reported to have a prospect of being met. After exhaustive tests the military authorities have apparently found a weapon which fulfils their exacting requirements.

The gun which has given the greatest satisfaction in tests is the "Z-B" of Czech origin. This will come as a surprise to many,

INDIAN BUDGET PROPOSALS

Fresh Taxation

New Delhi, Feb. 27.
Fresh taxation for providing a surplus of nineteen lakhs of rupees is included in the Budget introduced by Sir George Schuster. It includes an excise duty on sugar of 21 annas per cwt., a duty on raw tobacco of 38 annas per lb. in place of the standard 30 annas, a preferential excise duty on matches of 38 annas per gross boxes, and a reduction in silver duty from seven and half to five annas per ounce. It abolishes the duty on raw hides.—Reuter.

ANGLO-FRENCH TRADE

New Commercial Agreement

London, Feb. 28.
The British Government to-day handed to the French Ambassador in London a reply to the French note regarding the quota restrictions which suggested that pending ending of negotiation of the new commercial agreement, the present measures should remain in operation but that no new ones should be instituted on either side. Although it is possible further conversations between the two Governments may be necessary, it is now hoped that negotiations for the new agreement will begin during the coming month.—British Wireless.

BRITISH TRADE IMPROVED

Recovery Had Come To Stay

London, Feb. 6.
Belief was expressed to-day by the Chancellor of Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain that improvement which had taken place in British trade had come to stay. The Chancellor was speaking at a luncheon at the Birmingham section of the British Industries Fair, "From all directions you get indications that trade recovery in Britain is firmly on the upgrade," he said was general revival of confidence and the people felt that they could safely fill up their stocks and expand their plans and equipment. They felt recovery had come to stay. Although British had given preference to the Empire, she wanted other countries to know that if they bought more from Britain she would buy more from them.

The Chairman of Lloyd's Bank, Sir Beaumont Pease, who also spoke, advocated the extended use was a pity that the use of this old method of financing trade had of bills exchange and said that it fallen away.

SINGAPORE'S AIR FORCE

Immediate Addition Urged

London, Feb. 27.
A substantial increase to the Air Force stationed in Singapore is strongly urged by Naval and Air Force officers, according to the "Daily Telegraph" which adds that it is a growing demand of Government supporters for the immediate addition to the Royal Air Force of at least ten squadrons.—Reuter.

HAPSBURG MONARCHY

Revocation Of Banishment Laws Requested

Vienna, Feb. 27.
Speculation has been aroused by the fact that Prince von Starhemberg attended a Monarchist mass meeting and was given a warm ovation. The speakers at the meeting demanded the revocation of the laws banishing the Hapsburgs as a preliminary step towards the restoration of the monarchy but made no suggestion for its immediate restoration.—Reuter.

U.S. TRADE WITH SOVIET

Banks Created For The Purpose

Washington, Feb. 27.
Mr. Peek, who was hitherto Farm Administrator, has accepted the presidency of the New Import and Export Bank to assist the United States trade with Russia. Mr. Peek announced that a second bank is being created to assist trade with Cuba, and a third will be established to deal with other countries. He emphasised that the sole purpose was to assist the foreign trade of the United States to eventually balance the exports and imports.—Reuter.

CLASH WITH YOUTHS

Communist Killed In The Fight

Paris, Feb. 27.
One Communist was killed and several people injured in a fight between three hundred left wingers and a patriotic youth organisation, a strongly nationalistic body after a meeting held by the latter.—Reuter.

DISARMAMENT DISCUSSIONS

Capt. Eden's Reports Considered

London, Feb. 28.
Capt. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, began his conversations with Signor Mussolini at Venice Palace this evening. Earlier to-day he had an audience with the Pope. He was accompanied to the Vatican by Sir Robert Clive, Minister to the Holy See, and his conversation with His Holiness lasted half an hour. Capt. Eden also met Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, and afterwards made a tour of the Vatican. An official statement concerning the Rome conversations issued in Rome tonight stated that the head of Government received this afternoon at Venice Palace, Capt. Eden, Lord Privy Seal, who informed him of the conversations which had taken place in Paris and Berlin. This information enabled them to examine afresh the British and Italian memorandum. They found themselves in accord as to the object to be reached and, in particular, as to the possibility finding basis of general agreement.

The Cabinet Committee on disarmament met to-day and it is understood, the members considered the reports from Capt. Eden of his conversations in Paris and Berlin. Capt. Eden will make a short stay in Paris on his journey from Rome and is expected in London at the end of the week.—British Wireless.

MLE. HILZE ARRIVES

French Aviatix On Way To Japan

Mlle. Maryse Hilze, the well-known French aviatix who is on her second flight to Japan arrived here at 4.45 yesterday afternoon. She left Hanai at 11.30 yesterday morning, and her arrival was so unexpected that, according to Mr. Moss, in charge of Kai Tak Aerodrome, there was nobody present to receive her.

As can be imagined, she had a rather bad and trying trip, and we learn that she intends to leave for Shanghai this morning.

WHAT CHINA NEEDS

Opinion From London

London, Feb. 27.
China needs better Government communications, better export prices, less taxation, and a silver currency which will not affect her appreciably in comparison with these things declares the "Financial News" in commenting on the Shanghai Bankers' Association protests.

The raising of the price of beans, silk, eggs, ground nuts, tea, skins and coal is a problem for those who want to expand the Chinese export trade. It will not raise the price of the currency, but doubtless it would be of considerable advantage to China if the various silver plans gave some degree of increased stability to the price of silver.—Reuter.

RETURN OF KUPEIKOW

To Be Handed Over To-Morrow

Peking, Feb. 27.
Arrangements have been completed for the return of Kupeikow to-morrow and five minor Passes along the Great Wall. Kupeikow has been in the hands of the Japanese since last May when it was the scene of heavy fighting.—Reuter.

CABLE AND WIRELESS

New Control Body Created

Washington, Feb. 27.
The creation of a Federal Communications Commission is authorised to control the wire, cable and wireless communications which are at present controlled by the Radio Commission.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission recommended by President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress said that the new body should be fully empowered to investigate the business of the existing companies and make recommendations to Congress for additional legislation at the next session.

The services to be affected will be all those relying on wires, cables and radio as the medium of transmission.—Reuter.

sting in any of his blows except the dig to the body. And those were too few and far between to tell very much. By the time the 10th round was reached, Harvey was boxing well within himself, generally getting in first with the left and still compelling Gains to come in none too hopefully though cleverly enough. Some of the crowd cried for something more exciting than this, but Harvey was not to be flurried, and—well, Gains simply had not got any ferocious attack in him.

Harvey meanwhile was mixing up his boxing cleverly, now using a hook as well as a left and following right, now a shoulder-high right to the head. At the infighting he was, if anything, the stronger of the two after 10 rounds. Harvey must have felt the rabbit punches, but, equally so, Gains was fast losing whatever chance he had of shaking his man badly with the right. Nor was he able to develop the left hook that had proved so effective against the over-confident Don McCorkindale in the first two of their three fights. Gains got in once in the last round but one, but Harvey promptly brought back into action his stinging left to the face and, very coolly and deliberately, outmanoeuvred and outpointed his man in the last round.

BOXING

Harvey Becomes An Empire Champion

(Special Air Mail Service.)

London, Feb. 9.
Len Harvey boxed one of the cleverest fights of his long career when he beat Larry Gains at the Royal Albert Hall last night in a 15-round contest for the heavy-weight championship of the British Empire. Some may think of Harvey more as the born speller than the born boxer, but that hardly does full justice to a man who, within the space of 12 months, has held four titles, the Middle, Light Heavy, and Heavy-weight Championships of Great Britain, and the more expansive title he has now acquired at the expense of Gains.

With the world's championship yet to be brought back to this country after an unconscionable lapse of years, neither the Empire nor Harvey can afford to be too complacent over last night's victory. It still is necessary to appeal for a proper sense of proportion in these matters, and all the more so in this case because Gains, a Canadian negro boxer, once in the first flight, is now definitely barely in the second—that is in the aggressive, physical sense. Certainly he is a mere shadow of the man who outpointed Carrera a few years ago. As a boxer, however, Gains still is more than enough for the average heavy-weight, and in neutralizing his advantage, as it must be called, of over 2st., Harvey had to use all the finer points of his craft as well as the more notorious.

Holder and hitter on the break-away and mere aggravating spoiler Harvey often has been in the past but those members of a huge crowd who showed impatience last night did neither man justice. It was a battle of boxing wits and Harvey won, but it was something more. Harvey's watchful patience and cool courage on this occasion encouraged him to use a left lead more effectively than one ever remembers seeing him use it before, and it was this left lead, combined with round after round of skilful feinting and drawing on of a man who had little to learn about such things, that gave Harvey his clear lead on points. The in-fighting admittedly was of the type that cancelled out somewhat skillfully because both fighters knew too much. Gains used his rabbit punch and right dig to the ribs, Harvey worked his arms in the way peculiar to himself. He held and hit, but Gains was too clever to be caught often on the breakaway. All that, no doubt, was inevitable. The really surprising thing was that Harvey scored as many clear-cut blows as he did. Further, it was an obvious and significant fact that all through the fight, long before the limpness of fatigue was added to the limpness of a fine boxer with most of the snap and fire gone out of his fighting, Gains was labouring uphill.

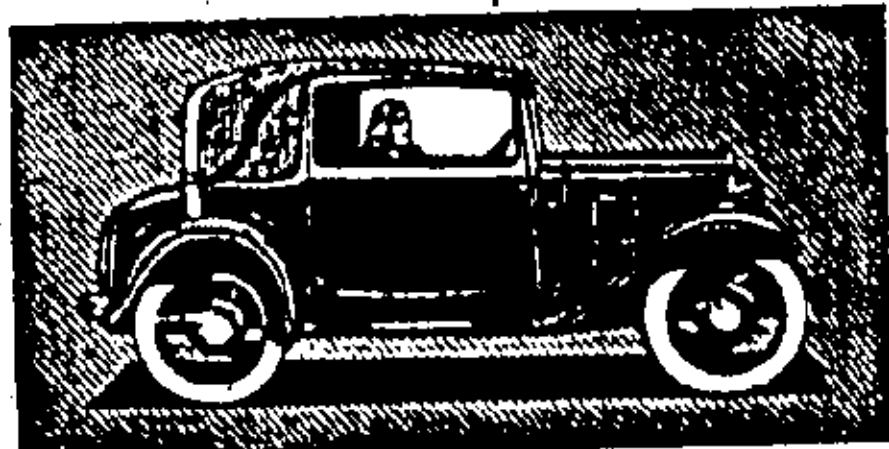

The Rounds.

Harvey shot out his left effectively at the first encounter and it may well have added to his confidence. Soon he was swinging his right and missing like Gains. Once, too, Harvey ran into a left counter and deserved praise for the prompt way in which he steadied himself and reverted to the kind of fight he evidently had planned. Forcing Gains to come to him, he scored with a stiff right to the body and took the round. Gains tried to attack in round two, but beyond a few digs to the ribs at close quarters achieved no more than his watchful opponent, who did best with the left. This round was drawn. Harvey's ability to get in first whenever Gains tried to lead gave him the third round, and although the latter's body blows neutralized Harvey's lefts in the next, the latter now had found the distance with his left and any idea that the bigger man would score a knock-out in the earlier rounds already must have left the minds of those who had backed him to win. In a cautious bout, in which Harvey boxed largely on the offensive-defensive, Gains himself looked safe enough from the worst—a knock-out punch—but there was no

NOW ON SALE Changing China Autumn Quarter

A quarterly non-political review of life and conditions in China.

"... Changing China is an interesting and useful quarterly. The articles which it contains have been written in the form of letters by men and women of various ranks of life who are living in the interior of China. The reader gets a picture or rather a series of pictures of life in Modern China, and at the same time a resumé of the progress made in industrial development during the past quarter."

Published By HONG KONG DAILY PRESS, LTD.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The following is taken from the "TIMES" LITERARY SUPPLEMENT dated 19th October, 1933.

CHANGING CHINA. A Quarterly Non-Political Review of Life and Conditions in Modern China. Vol. I, No. 1, April, 1933, 128 pp. Vol. I, No. 2, July, 1934, 128 pp. 7 x 4 1/2. Hongkong Daily Press (63, Fleet Street, E.C.4.). 1s. 6d. n. each.

In a prefatory note the editor explains that the purpose of this newly established quarterly is to keep a record of the progress of events in all parts of China and, by disseminating a fuller knowledge of the country's actual conditions and needs, to assist in the promotion of trade and a better understanding between East and West. To this end, qualified correspondents in every province have undertaken to supply reports, commentaries, and forecasts. The first two numbers contain several articles on interesting subjects—e.g., the industrial development of the Kiang provinces, the spread of Communism, the condition of the native cotton industry, and the Mind of Young China.

SIR H. DETERDING ON EUROPEAN BANKERS"Senility And Gold Disease"

A remarkable letter from Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch Company and chairman of the Shell Union Oil Corporation, denouncing the "senility" of European bankers, appears in to-day's "New York Times". The letter had been originally sent to a New York banker, and it is not stated whether it was intended for publication.

Declaring that because of the ultra-conservatism of European bankers the financial dawn must come from the United States, Sir Henri goes on to say that Mr. Roosevelt's measures have been criticised in London "in a most stupid and ridiculous way."

He states that the bankers have failed to understand the difference between money and gold. The banks have got into the hands of men not so much old in years as old in spirit. They were suffering from what he called "Gold disease, which is a symptom of senility."

London, according to Sir Henri, is obsessed by the idea bred by financial theorists that there can only be one monetary standard—gold.
